EDITOR'S PREFACE.

N at length presenting to the subscribers this long-anticipated volume, it is perhaps right that some apology should be offered them for the time which has elapsed since its first announcement, but I may be permitted to say, in explanation, that the delay has arisen principally from my being able to pursue the work only at such odd moments as could be snatched irregularly from the busy and exacting routine of daily duties.

Apart from the addition of dates, the reproduction, from original sources, of several documents incorrectly quoted by some other hand, and occasional alterations in the sequence of paragraphs with a view to secure uniformity of arrangement, the book, as now printed, may be taken as a verbatim et literatim rendering of Bacon's MS.

The annotations, drawn chiefly from the State Papers in the Public Record Office, the Harleian and Additional MSS., the collections of Jermyn and Davy, and other MS. sources, as well as from a large number of printed works, contain references, more or less copious, to about six hundred and thirty persons, places, or matters connected with the town, and will, I hope, not only be found interesting and useful to the reader, but also afford substantial help in the prosecution of more extended researches into the history of Ipswich and its people. The distribution of these notes is no doubt somewhat unequal, but the earlier pages had unfortunately to be proceeded with in Ipswich, the libraries of which, however admirable in other respects, are as yet of little use to the antiquary. A few annotations, marked (B), are by Bacon himself; some others, distinguished by the initials (R. C.) are from the pen of the Rev. Richard Canning, M.A. minister (1734—75) of St. Lawrence, Ipswich, and rector of Harkstead, who edited, in 1764, the second edition of "Kirby's Suffolk Traveller;" the authorship of a few more, initialled (J. S.) seems to be unknown.

I have, in conclusion, to express my obligation to those who, in various ways, kindly assisted my labours; and among these I must mention, first of all, the late Town Clerk, Mr. Orford, and his courteous assistant, Mr. H. C. Garrett, whose obliging services during the six weeks occupied in comparing the transcript supplied to me with the original, as well as subsequently, were of much value. My thanks are also due to Sir John B. Monckton, Kt., Town Clerk of the City of London, for leave to make some extracts from the archives at Guildhall; Dr. Reginald R. Sharpe, the Records Clerk; Mr. H. Murray-Lane, Chester Herald and Registrar, R. Coll. of Arms; and more especially to Dr. Luard, Registrar of the University of Cambridge; Mr. Walford D. Selby, of the Public Record Office; and Mr. J. J. Muskett, whose promised work on "Suffolk Manorial Families" will be awaited with much interest.

MEMOIR OF NATHANIELL BACON.

NATHANIELL BACON, the compiler of "THE ANNALLS OF IPSWICHE," was born at Coddendam, in the County of Suffolk, on the 12th of December, 1593. He was the third son of Edward Bacon, of Shrubland Hall, in Barham, by Helen, the only daughter and sole heiress of Thomas Littel of the same place, and of Bray, in the County of Berks, Esq., by Elizabeth his wife, daughter and co-heir of Sir Robert Litton, of Knebworth, in the County of Herts, Kt. Edward Bacon, the father of Nathaniell, was the third son of the great Lord Keeper, Sir Nicholas Bacon, Kt., by his first wife Jane, daughter of William Fernley, of West Creeting, in the County of Suffolk, Esq., and half brother of the illustrious Francis Bacon, Viscount Saint Albans, who in the Parliament of 1614 represented Ipswich, until he was elected by the University of Cambridge.

Nathaniell Bacon was admitted a student at Grays Inn in 1611, and was called to the Bar in 1617. He was first Reader at Barnard's Inn, and afterwards Lent Reader of his own Inn, and became a Bencher in 1640.

For some years he resided in Essex, and was in the Commission of the Peace for that County.

He was a strong adherent of the Parliamentary party, and took a very decided and active part in the transactions of his time, and was highly esteemed for his learning, talent and ability. He sat at Cambridge as Chairman of the Committee for the Seven Associated Counties (Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex, Cambridge, Herts, Hunts, and Lincoln) with great and general approbation of the Counties and the University, and in 1645, upon the death of Dr. Eden, he was chosen by the University of Cambridge as its Representative, and served throughout the remainder of the "Long Parliament" until the Members were expelled by Cromwell, on the 20th April, 1653.

It is to be observed that Cromwell was a member of the Committee of the Association of the Seven Counties (which was the only Association of the five or six formed in the interest of the Parliamentary party that stood its ground), and that Bacon was by birth or marriage connected with County families belonging to several of these Counties.

Nath Bacon

At a Great Court, holden for the Borough of Ipswich, on the 30th December, 1642, Bacon was elected Recorder of the town upon the conditions set forth in the following terms, as recorded at the commencement of the fourth Book of Great Courts.

"Att this Cort it is agreed that Nathaniell Bacon Esq^e shall bee employed in the "roome and place which John Lany Esq^e lately held and shall beare the name or "title of a Recorder duringe the Townes pleasure and shall have allowed unto him "Twentie poundes a yeare for his fee to bee paid halfe yearely from Christmas last by "equall porcons soe that hee take upp his freedome and continewe his dwellinge wthn "this towne duringe the continewance of his office and that in consideracon of the "premisses hee shall ayde and counsell the Bayliffes for the time beeing in all causes "of the Towne att London and elsewhere and aid the Bayliffes for the time beeing in "all judgements demurrers and all other causes without beeing of counsell with any "man's private cause in the Courts of this Towne and also to travell to the Court and "other places by the direcon of the Bayliffes for the time beeing to doe the messages "and business of the Townie convenient by him to bee done havinge horses found him "and his necessary chardges borne And it is further agreed that upon hys the said "Mr Bacon's acceptance of the said place as aforesaid hee shall bee admitted a ffree "Burgesse of this Towne freely without any fine and shall take the Oath of a Freeman "at some Petty Court"

At a subsequent Court, holden the 10th of March, 1643, it is recorded that he took his oath, and had three sons—Nathaniell, Phillip, and Francis—and "no apprentices."*

He took up his residence in the parish of Saint Margaret, in Ipswich, in a mansion house, which he subsequently left, by will, to his wife, and he appears, by his signatures to the Parish Registers, in the years 1650 and 1651, to have been for some time Churchwarden of that parish. He was a contributor to the decoration of the Roof of the Church of that parish, on which his arms, with those of other donors, appear.

At a Court held on the 8th of August, 1651, he was for the first time elected Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace for the Borough, which appointments were annually renewed. At the Great Court, held on the 29th September, 1653, he was elected, and continued to be annually elected one of the Clavigers, who had the custody of the Common Seal and Records of the Corporation. Bacon continued to hold the offices of Recorder, Town Clerk, Clerk of the Peace, and Claviger, to the day of his death.

He was also Recorder of Bury Saint Edmund's, as well as a Judge of the High Court of Admiralty, to which office he was appointed the 30th August, 1649, and a Master of the Court of Requests.

In the year 1654, at a Great Court, held the 22nd of June, Nathaniell Bacon and his brother Francis were elected Burgesses for the Towne, to serve at the Parliament

* The right to become a Freeman by birth or service, was limited to the children or apprentices of Freemen, born or apprenticed after the Parent or Master had become a Freeman. It was usually notified what children or apprentices a person newly admitted then had, to prevent such children or apprentices being crouled as if they had been born or apprenticed after the admission of their "Root of Title." which began at Westminster, 3d September, in that year, "to act and consent unto suche "things as shall be there ordained," subject, however, to the following very remarkable condition:—"That they shall not intermeddle in the altering of Governmt^t as it is "now established under one man and the Parliam^t." The two Bailiffs, five Portmen, seventeen of the Twenty-four men, and 108 Free Burgesses, making in all 132 electors, were present at this election, and the list of names as recorded includes many who had been or were subsequently Bailiffs, besides other leading men and benefactors of the town. †

† The following is a copy of the names of the Electors present, as recorded at the Court, from which it may be interesting to local subscribers to trace many benefactors to the town.

The following part of this note, upon the constitution and mode of proceeding of the Corporation, prior to the Municipal Corporation Act, 1835, and upon Election of Members of Parliament, prior to the Reform Act of 1832, has been kindly furnished by Mr. Stephen Abbott Notcutt, who was Town Clerk of the Borough for many years.

Before the Municipal Corporation Act, 1835, the name of the Corporation was "The Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Commonalty of the Borough of Ipswich." And it consisted of two Bailiffs (who together held the office of Chief Magistrate), twelve Portmen, twenty-four Common Councilmen, and an indefinite number of Freemen or Burgesses.

The Bailiffs were annually elected by the Corporation on the 8th of September.

The Portmen held their office for life, and a vacancy was filled up by the survivors, or "the more part of them."

The Common Councilmen held their office by the same tenure, and vacancies were filled up in the same way, that is, by the survivors, or "the more part of them."

A Freeman held his office for life, and every son of a Freeman, born after his father had been admitted to the Freedom, was entitled to be admitted as such, on attaining the age of 21, and any one bound an apprentice for seven years to an admitted Freeman, and serving faithfully the full period under his indentures of apprenticeship, became entitled to be admitted as a Freeman. The Corporation had, like many other Corporations, the right to present the Freedom, which right was occasionally exercised.

For several years, prior to the Municipal Corporation Act, 1835, the vacancies in the Portmen had not been filled up, as the number had been allowed to drop below seven, and it was held that the words "the more part of them," applied to a majority of twelve. At the time of passing the Municipal Corporation Act, the number of Portmen had been reduced to four.

As to the mode of proceeding—The Acts of the Corporation could only be done or authorised by a meeting, called a Great Court, consisting of the two Bailiffs, and some of the Portmen, Common Councilmen, and Freemen. At these meetings every Freeman was entitled to vote upon any question before the meeting. Each question was determined by show of hands, unless a poll was demanded. The right to Both Nathaniell and his brother Francis were re-elected for the Parliaments of the 17th September, 1656, the 29th January, 1658, and the 5th April, 1660. But whether the restriction above referred to was renewed is not stated. On Nathaniell Bacon's death in 1660 Sir Frederick Cornwallis, Knt., Treasurer of King's Hospital, was elected as Burgess in Parliament in his place at a Great Court held on the 29th October, 1660, and continued to serve with Francis Bacon the brother of Nathaniell until the end of the session.

Bacon was the author of the work entitled, "An Historical Discourse of the Uniformity of the Government of England." This book was published at London in two parts. The first part published in 1647 has an epistle dedicatory to the Right Honourable Edward Earle of Manchester, Speaker of the House of Peeres, and the Honourable William Lenthall, Esqu., Speaker of the House of Commons in Parliament, signed "Nath. Bacon"; but without any further description of him. The second part published in 1651 has on the title page "by Nath: Bacon of Graies Inne Esquire," and has for a preface, "A Vindication of the Ancient way of Parliament."

The work is highly praised by the Earl of Chatham in his letters to his nephew, and unfavourably spoken of by Bishop Nicolson in his "English Historical Library," published in London, 1696—1699. It was privately reprinted in 1672, and again in 1682, for which editions the publishers were indicted and outlawed. It was reprinted in 1689, and again in 1739 and 1760. From an advertisement printed in the edition of 1689, it appears to have been then considered that the book was founded upon notes by the learned John Selden. †

Bacon died in London, and was buried in the church of Barham, on September 1st, 1660 (where his father and mother were buried), without any inscription. He had the character of being a very pious, prudent and learned man. The Reverend Cave Beck (who was Curate of the parish of St. Margaret when Nathaniell Bacon resided there, and vote was not confined to the Freemen resident in the Borough. A large majority of the Freemen resided out of the Borough, and whenever the question was disputed and considered of importance, the non-resident Freemen were brought up to vote.

Although no Corporate Acts could be done, except at a Great Court, the Bailiffs, Portmen and Common Councilmen were accustomed to meet from time to time, as a sort of standing Committee, to consider and determine upon matters to be brought before the Great Court. These meetings were called meetings of the Assembly, and their proceedings were regularly recorded in a book called the "Assembly Book."

Prior to the Reform Act of 1832, the members of Parliament for the Borough were elected by the Corporation, at a Great Court, held at the proper time, according to the writ of election. A Great Court for this purpose was constituted, and the proceedings conducted in the same manner as for any other business of the Corporation. The candidates were proposed and seconded, and if a poll was demanded, the non-resident as well as the resident Freemen, were entitled to vote, and the poll was kept open from day to day, until all the Freemen had had an opportunity of voting. The candidates having the majority of votes were declared to be duly elected, and a return to that effect was made by Indenture, under the Common Seal, and annexed to the Election Precept.

† There has been some controversy whether the subject of this Memoir, or Nathaniell Bacon, of Friston Hall, near Saxmundham, in Suffolk, or Nathaniell Bacon, "the Virginian insurgent or rebel," was the author of this work, but as it is now clear that the rebel was never of Gray's Inn, and that the will of Nathaniell Bacon, of Friston Hall, was proved (at Ipswich) in 1644, there can be no doubt that the Nathaniell Bacon referred to in these Title Pages is the Bacon who is the subject of this Memoir. It is remarkable that both he and his cousin of Friston Hall, were admitted in Gray's Inn the same year, 1611.

who was subsequently Rector of the parish of St. Helen, and Master of the Grammar School, in Ipswich), in the following dedication of his work: "The universal character "by which all the nations in the world may understand one another's conceptions, "reading out of one common writing their own mother tongues, London, 1657," records a high opinion of his character;

"Sapientia, virtute, genere, praecellentibus Nathanieli Bacon et Francisco Bacon, "Armigeris, Fratribus, Amore, Pietate, Dignitate conjunctissimis Patronis suis "Colendissimis Hunc Gratitude et observantiae characterem indebilem, D. D. C. B."

Nathaniell Bacon was a man of great industry, and was zealously alive to the interests of Ipswich, as is evident from his constant attendances at the Great Courts for the Borough, up to the 30th April, 1660, the day of his last recorded attendance, and from the labour he bestowed upon the Annals. His labour in compiling these Annals was recognized by the Town, granting a gratuity to his widow, at a Great Court holden on the 8 November, 13 Charles 11. (1661), recorded in the Great Court Books as follows:—"Agreed that Mrs. Bacon shall have a Gratuities of Five and twentie pounds given her "fm this towne for the great paynes that her husband, Mr. Nathaniell Bacon, did take "in the transcribinge of several ancient Records belonging to this Towne." Although it is very evident, from the perusal of the discourse on the Uniformity of Government, that Bacon had a very strong bias to the principles of the Parliamentary party, at the close of his Annals he seems to drop a tear over the unfortunate King Charles the 1st, concluding them with this remark,—

"The last daye of Januarie puttis a sad period unto my penn. And thus, by the "goodness of Allmightie God, I have summed up the affairs of the government of this "town of Ippeswicke under Bayliffes whoe are happie in this, that God hathe estab- "lished their seate more sure than the throne of kings."

Bacon was twice married, namely:—first to Elizabeth, the daughter of Robert Maidstone, Esquire, of Boxted, in Essex, and widow of Edward Glascocke, of Horsley (Horkesley), in Essex, who died without issue by him, and was buried at Horsley; and secondly to Susanna Holloway, daughter of Holloway, and the widow of Matthew Alefounder, of Dedham, in Essex. By his second wife he had issue three sons (besides one Francis who died in infancy), Nathaniell, Philip, and Francis, and five daughters, Catherine, Ann, Helen, Susanna (baptised at St. Margaret's, Ipswich, the 19th October, 1649), and Elizabeth. His sons Nathaniell and Francis were both entered at Jesus College, Cambridge. Nathaniell took his B.A. degree, and died "magnæ spei juvenis." Francis died in 1661.

His Will is dated the 26th August, 1660, and, with a Codicil, was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, on the 8th of July, 1661. ||

PREFACE.

TO THE READER.

IN the framing of this Relaçon, I purposely omitt the names of the freemen from time to time meeting at the greate Courts of this Towne, and of such as are from time to time admitted, (unless somme cheife men of rank). And alsoe the divers orders for disposing of the mony given to charitable uses from time to time, and do referre the Reader to the Court bookes, w^{ch} are precise in noting of those p'ticulers. ffor that my ayme is principally to recollect those auncient memorialls remaining in scattered writings and records, whereof noe recollection hath bein formerly made, and therby lay buried up, as it were in a heape of rubbish, and to adjoine therto all the later orders, and ordinances, and acts, concerning the governm^t and order of the people or Town lands, as things of greatest observaçon for the future managem^t of affaires; and these onely in a summary way, referring the reader to those court bookes concerning the litterall composure of the same.

Now to give accompt from whence I have gathered these observations principally; you shall understand that the remembrances in the Treasury, from whence these for the most p't are collected, consist of Court Rolls, and Court Bookes, and Deedes, besides letters, accompts and other writings concerning suites, all which I have found help from in setting down this series of affaires, for no Court bookes are to be found before the ninth yere of Hen: the 6th, and the bookes, esp'ly about the time of Hen: the 7th and Hen: 8th, in matters of the greate Court, [are] negligently observed till about the 30 yere of Hen: the 8th, and from that time forward the acts of the greate court are preserved in one booke apart, being formerly mingled wth in the peticourts. And during all this time of Hen: 7. and Hen: 8., Edw: 6., [and] Q. Mary, few Rolls are to be found; shewing eyther the negligence of the Town Clark or the Clavigers in keeping the records, if any were.

Nor is there above 2 rolls before the time of Edw: 1.; the reason will appear in the ensuing treatise.

Soe as the bulke of rolls consists of the times of Edw: 1., Edw: 2., Edw: 3., Rich: 2., Hen: 4., Hen: 5., Q. Eliz: King James and King Charles; the rest are scant and few, especially about the times of Hen: 5., 6., 7., and Hen: 8., Edw: 6., and Q. Mary.

The Cause which moved me to this work was: That I did p'ceive few or none of the inhabitants of this Town were acquainted with the trew nature of the governm^t, and therfore could not soe exactly conforme them selves to the auncient rules, wh^{ch} are the sea marks by w^{ch} Governours ought to steare theire course, and wthout w^{ch} noe Governm^t can long continue, and I finde somme cause to conceive that former Recorders, or at least somme of them, (though long exercised in that worke) yet eyther died ignorant of the principles aunciently taken up, or else caried them selves corruptly, w^{ch} in Charity I ought not to beleve. Now for the future, I suppose a little time imployed in the p'usal of this work by any Recorder or others y^t shall minde the governm^t of this towne, will inable him for this governm^t more than forty yeres experience.

Lastly I beginne wth the governm^t of Bayliffs, (w^{ch} camme in wth the Normans, as the name dothe cleerely import) principally because I want further light in p'ticulers, yet by way of introduction I shall note these few p'ticulers, that as all corporacons before the Conquest, (a) soe even this Towne was Governed by The Guildholder and Headburrowes, and Coroners of the County, by Lawes and Customes settled by them and the inhabitants in theire moote or meeting, and these were then the administrators of Justice, as by the Saxon laws is evident, and yet in the nature of publike servants of the Towne.

(a) What Corporations were there before the Conquest? (R. C.)

But when the Normans camme in, they seized the Governm^t of all Corporations, and sett over this corporation, (as even over London it self) two Bayliffs as servants to the supreame power, to administer Justice (a) and to be responsible to the supreame power for the fee farme, w^{ch} they enhanced beyond what was payed to the Saxon kings. Yet they allowed the choise of these Bayliffs to the people. (b) Afterwards Hen: the 2^d granted the inhabitants liberty to elect two Coroners from amongst themselves: these were allsoe servants to the supreame power, and had jurisdiction in Crown plees. But the inhabitants not liking that their governm^t should be concealed wthin the breasts of soe few, and these servants to the supreame power, by constitution joyned wth them twelve whom they called 'Portmen,' (c) to whom they gave authority to vote together wth the Bayliffs in case of jurisdiction, and this constitution was afterwards allowed by Charters, but neverthesse are originally from the people. Now what persons these originally were, is to me a doubt: somme of the rolls do seeme to hold forth that they were those whoe formerly were Headburrowes, and in reason it may seem expedient that they [who] were thought worthy of one place, might be thought worthy of the other. But finding a Quo warranto brought against the Towne under the name of the Bayliffs and fower and twenty, twelve yeres after the constitution and election of the first Portmen, it may seeme more probable that the fower and twenty were the 12 Portmen and the 12 headburrowes, and the rather is it to be beleaved, because wthin a while after, its apparant that the headburrowes Court was holden different from, and wthout the Portmen, and so continueth to this day. And possibly the Headburrowes work might be thought to be eyther too inferiour or otherwise too burthensomme for the Portmens undertaking, whoe were to maintaine the state of the Towne (and probably had their name given them to minde them of their maine work,) and to assist the Bayliffs in judicature, as their othe sheweth, and the constitution it selfe limiteth out to them the same.

This power of theirs they expounded liberally, (as is the custome of those in power to doe) and from assisting in judicature according to lawes made by the whole body, proceeded to exercise a power wth the Bayliffs to make lawes and constitutions for the governm^t thereof, allowing the commons onely their libertie of assent: whether this was cautelous to the people, or what other the cause was, its not materiall, but the inhabitants joynd the number of fower and twenty to be assisting in publique Councells wth the Portmen and Bayliffs, and these together wth them made up a Councell for the Towne, w^{ch} after was called the Assembly, or the Common Councill, the said fower and twenty being made up of 12 new members joynd unto the Headburrowes.

The time of their institution is as uncertaine as their power. That act of the 13 of Edw: 4., made upon S^t Davids day, [was made] principally, as it seemes, to abate the necessity of Greate Courts, and their power speaketh much of the antiquity of the assembly, but I can finde noe footstepps before that kings reigne of any such matter. ffor in Hen: 6ths reigne divers acts are made by Bayliffs, Portmen, and the Burgesses subscribing their names [to] Divers assessm^{ts}, uppon eache portman soe much, and uppon eache other Burgess soe much, and noe mencon of any suche rank of men as the fower and twenty, nor doth any Charter take notice of them. Their work was (doubtless according to their name mett in one body) wth the twelve Portmen, to give advice in matters of immergency, for the good of the Towne, as the Common Councill of the same, but certainly [they] had noe legislative power till that constitution of 13 E. 4: formerly menconed, was made.

Concerning w^{ch} I shall leave this my oppinion in writing wth my own hand, as in the presence of God, and being mindefull of my othe: That it seemeth clere to me to be a rule made for the present state of affaires, to avoid distractions, and not to continue as a binding law to posterity. My reason is, because the act or constitution it selfe in the preface importeth soe much, and principally because I can not understand how it can consist wth the charters formerly granted, or wth those afterwards granted, w^{ch} fixeth the legislative power uppon the greate Court, nor wth the auncient Customs of the Towne. Or how such law by them made, can be effectuell in the eye of the Common Law in any court before whome Cognisance of suche law shall comme.

I desire that the reader will not mistake my meaning, whoe doe not intend to question the election of Portmen by Portmen as illegall; the order of the 3rd yere of Edw: the 2nd will clere that sufficiently. But I doe not think it consistent wth the governm^t of this Towne, that the greate Court should be concluded by any order of theire owne, whereby that power of making lawes whiche bothe the Charters and auncient Customes have allotted to them, should be utterly abrogated as to them, and transferred to any other Court not warranted by any charter or custom, and therefore the vote of the greate Court, 23 Car: 1 Novemb: is every way justifiable by the constitutions of this Town, and for peace sake, I wish as muche could be said for the election of the fower and twenty by themselves, allthough I deny not but presidents in Q. Eliz: time doe leade that way, yet I can finde noe constitution for it.

Three officies more yet remaine, wherof, though I made mention formerly, yet I must add somewhat for further clearing the governm^t of this Towne, and these are the Guildholders and the Headburrowes, and Coroners, uppon whome the hinge of governm^t in this towne in the Saxon times did rest. (a)

As touching the Guildholder, aunciently he was one man, elected by the brotherhood of the Guild, for the rule or governm^t thereof, in order to the benefit of the same. (b) ffor it was the wisdome of our predecessors in those older times, having elected a place of habitation in this place commodious for traffique, to joyne together by mutuall consent in a common purse, to maintaine the common good and benifitt of themselves as members of one body, and to exclude suche as refused to joyne wth them from the common benifitt of freedome in trade or Traffique: and in those times all such as were made ffree, were by them

(a) See "Index to Municipal Offices," L. Gomme, Index Soc. 1879.

(b) All this is gratis dictum. The Guild, before the Enfranchisement of Boroughs, was, as it were, the Customhouse of the Crown, unto which all traders, during the servile state of the Burgesses, were obliged to pay a duty before they were permitted to trade; which duty was call'd the 'hanse,' from whence came the word 'Hansell,' or leave to sell, now used for the first money taken in the sale of any goods. [R. C.]

admitted to the freedome of the Guild. But in after ages by reason of confluence of inhabitants for commodiousness of dwelling, many of them not delighting at all in that course of life, regarded not the freedome of the Guild, and soe the Towne growing too bigge for the Guild, and probably, as noe members of their body soe not governed, or not as they ought to be: The Normans sett the Bayliffs upon the whole Towne, as officers under them to render and accompt of the whole Towne, in order to obedience unto them. Albeit that the governm^t of the Guild still continuued in order to the profit of them selves in matter of trade; and soe did for a long time after, till those kind of fraternities grew distastfull to kings in their governm^t, by trenching too much, as was thought, upon the prerogative of kings, by their ordinances, and by lawes, the same were committed to the cognisance of the Justices of the peace,^(a) or cheif Governour of the Corporation, to be disallowed, or allowed and recorded by them, and afterwards to the Justices of the Benches and of assizes. And thus their power being checked, they withered, and for their better support, taking into their society many fforrainers that minded not that way of Trade, by degrees the freedome of the Guild was changed into the freedom of the Towne, The Guildholder still retaining his title and name, as a monument of an auncient freedom, and no more, although formerly he was looked upon as a kind of Check to the Bayliffs, and in somme acts, (even of the kings of this land,) sett in order before the Bayliffs. As it hath bein, therefore, the wisdom of this town hitherto, soe it will be their wisdom for y^e future, to continue constant regard of election of Guildholders, although it be merely tituler, and of no consequence in the governm^t of this Town.^(b)

The Headburrowes were those that aunciently were called Chiefe pledges; and were the Governours of the Towne in point of jurisdiction in matters of rights and nuisances, as the Guildholder in matter of trade; what their power in p'ticular was, may appeare by the Stat: 18 E: 2. and by their continuall practise, even to this day, but what it was over and besides that power (especially in matters or crimes against the publique peace) is difficult to sett downe; in regard the records have noe foote stepps therof; nevertheless, what ever it was, the Bayliffs by theire institution swallowed it up, as may appeare from the Auncient Indictm^{ts} w^{ch} are "contra pacem Balivorum"—"against the peace of the Bayliffs."

The Crown plees were aunciently inquirable onely by the Coroners, w^{ch} in those times were the kings Coroners of the County, and triable before Justices Itinnerant, unless in case of appeale, w^{ch}, as they were aunciently tried before the Bayliffs, soe, before theire time probably were tried before the Headburrowes or Guildholder, wth them. But by the Charter of Hen: the 2^d, Coroners are granted eligible wthin The Towne.

Thus have I glanced upon the Auncient governm^t of this Towne by way of Introduction. The summe of all being this: That by the perusall of this booke, those that mind the governm^t of this Towne may see what their predecessors have donne, and wherein they failed, that thereby a way may be found for a more p^rfect rule of a more righteouse and peaceable governm^t, wth truth wthin this Body, w^{ch} as it is and shall be my dayly praier and indeavour wthin my place, soe doe I beseeche all other the members hereof to indeavour the like, every one of them being contented to do the work of theire place, and not to exceede the same. But especially to advance Gods worship, and his Solemme dayes and times for the continuance of the same in publique, wthout w^{ch} both righteousness and prosperity, (w^{ch} God forbidd) will gett uppon the wing and be gone, and leave this place buried upp in contempt, w^{ch} hitherto hath bein the glory of the places round about.

BACON'S ANNALS OF IPSWICH.

THE PERAMBULATION OF THE LIBERTIES OF IPSWICH.

1352-3, 26 Edw. III.

JOHAN COBBET and Henry Rotton, Bayliffs of the said towne of Ipswich, wth their Burgesses, did ride the circuit under written, including the fower Hamlets of the said towne, that is to say: Stoke, wth all the appurtenances; Brooks Hall, wth the churche of St. Buttolfs in Whitton; Wicks Ufford & Wicks Bp.; with all theire appurtenances; peaceably and quietly, wthout any contradiction. By the kings Precept.

The Circuit of the ffranchise of Ipsw^{ch}, and belonging to our souveraine Lo. K. Edw: 3., after the conquest of England, the 26 yere, and of ffrance, the 13th; and these were the Bayliffs of the Towne the same yere: John Cobbet and Hen: Rotton. ffrom the Bull stake unto the mid bridge of Bourn bridge, a good mile; and from the bridge under Stoke hill wood that longeth to the prior of Ely by the water side, unto Thetford bridge, and through the yard of old Reinold Bourn; and forth by the Gate of old Rob: Andrew, and in a lane unto the Cross that belongeth unto the Prior of St Peters in Ipsw^{ch}, and then into a little lane into the high-way from Ipsw^{ch} to Hadly, and to the Crosse that parteth Stoke Neyland way and Hadly way, and turne againe to Ipsw^{ch} ward unto Breedling Buss, and in a fare mere unto Bordshow wood, and leave the same wood on the right hand, and into Holdessie vally, and into the meadowes and over the River under Bordshow Hall into the high way from Ipsw^{ch} to Sprawton. And in a little lane between Joh: of Western tenem^t of Ipsw^{ch}, Sporier; and in the lane that goeth from Ipsw^{ch} to the high way to Bramford, and from that high way to Wetman How, and from Witman How on a faire mere unto Lovetoft

Hall, and have in all Leyhams Closes, and in a little lane to the Cross in Whitton in Whitton streete, and in a lane to Whitton Church that is holden of St. Buttolfs, and from the Church on a faire mere unto old John Omersons of Thurlston, and in a little lane that goeth to Ponton marche, and through Ponton marche into a lane that goeth to Westerfeild wood; and into Westerfeild Wood, and on a faire way that goeth to the Crosse that stand by the high way that goeth from Ipsw^{ch} unto Tuddenham; and from the Crosse on a faire greene way, and in the same way to Rushmere; and forth by the Hall gate, and in the same way to a Crosse that stands in the high way betwene Ipsw^{ch} and Rushmore, and in the same way forthe by Rogers (blank) gate, and forth to a Close of the aforesaid Rogers to the high way that goeth from Ipswiche to Woodbridge: and from that way on a faire greene that goeth to Bixly marshes end, into the high way that goeth from Ipsw^{ch} to Colniss; and unto Merediche, and as Merediche goeth into a way that goeth from Ipsw^{ch} to Nacton, and from the way unto a Close that is Mr John Paxter's, by Daniells hill, on a greene way through old Walter Ponds close, and in a lane fast by the Dayry of Alis Borne, unto Kings Ness, and from Kings Ness unto Donham bridge; and from Donham bridge by the water side unto Ipsw^{ch}.

IPSW^{CH}BEFORE Y^E NORMANS TIME.

It was even then a town of repute, and by the Danes at their first comming in twice pillaged within the space of 20 yeres; yet before those times it had been a Corporacon and a halfe hundred, and had diverse members or hamlets besides the maine body of the towne, of whiche number Stoke was one, and then soe greate as it rendred unto the Saxon kings tenne pounds yerely rent, and was granted to the Church by Edgar the Saxon king in ffree allms. One other member of Ipsw^{ch} at that time was Brookes Hamlet, and rendred unto the Saxon kings 10^{li} rent, & the same was granted afterwards by Edward the Saxon king unto Alurick de Clare at the same rent.

What the certaine number of the parishes were in the body of the Towne in those daies I finde not, yet I find that there were then eight mencioned under the names of Trinity: St Mary: St Michael: St Buttolfe: St Laurence: St Peter: St Steven; and doubtless there were more, for diverse more there are that seeme not inferiour in antiquity to any of the former. (a)

In the body of the Towne there were in those times three hundred and eight and twenty dwelling houses. And in them were five hundred thirty

(a) This is no consequence: we know several of the present Churches have been built since; and it is most probable none of the buildings now standing are near so old as Mr. Bacon supposes. And as the authority of Domesday hath always been allowed and submitted to, it is much more reasonable to believe there were at that time no more Churches than are therein mentioned. (C) and eight inhabitants that payed tribute to those kings, and bare Scott and Lott with the Guildable part of the County. It likewise had forty akres of land in Demesne, and payed a fee farme to the king at fifteen pounds yerely. Two parts of three of this rent was granted by Edward the Saxon king unto his Queene. And the other third p. was granted to Duke Werth that was brother to Harold, whoe was after competi-tour with the Norman Duke William for the crowne of England.

IPSW^{CH}

IN THE NORMAN TIMES.

During these times the town was much decayed; rather occasioned by the pillage and plunder of the Danes soe lately donne, then from any violence from the Conquerour, I meane the Normans: ffor their policy led them to the protection of the people in their liberties, in order to the establishm^t of their own liberties to themselves and their posterity, as may appeare in the lawes of him whoe is ordinarily stiled y^e Conqueror, (or rather his grand Charter), wherein he granteth to all Burroughs to hold their free market upon this ground, that in them the Customs of the kingdom, the Common Law, and other good lawes made by former Princes cannot be destroyed nor violated; and the like dothe appeare in the Lawes of Hen. y^e first, whereof afterwards.

This decay that I mentioned, was rather in the estates of the inhabitants then in their number, although in that allsoe there was abatem^t. ffor in the Domesday booke in the Excheq^r, it is related that then there were noe more then one hundred and tenne burgesses left that bare Scott and Lott wth the gueldable p^t of the County, besides one hundred burgesses of the poorer sort, that were not able to give above one penny to the king, and yet the farm of the Towne to the Excheq^r was rayased to Twenty Seven pounds yerely.

During the reignes of Willm y^e Conqueror and Wm Rufus I finde nothing concerning this town more then hath bein saide.

In Henry the first his reign, by a law he ordained town Courts should be holden every monthe, w^{ch} formerly by the Saxon Lawes were to hold onely fower times in the yere; yet this restrained not custome aunciently settled of oftener holding courts, as it may seeme this Towne had. But in perticuler concerning this Towne I finde nothing but that in this kings time the Hamlett of Wikes was a member of Ipsw^{ch}: for the king did grant unto Allaine of Brittain out of the Hamlett of Wicks, a member of Ipsw^{ch}, thirteene shillings fower pence, to be payed by the Bayliffs of Ipsw^{ch}, soe as Ipsw^{ch} was alsoe governed by Bayliffs as their chiefe magistrates (a) in this kings time.

(a) i.e., as officers of the Crown. (C)

HEN: II.

Henry the Second was the first king since the Conquest that showed any special favour to this Towne (a). ffor whereas by the Conquerours Lawe formerly menconed, markets were ordered to be holden onely in Citties and Burroug Townes, and by reason thereof This Towne had formerly a greate market, there being noe market nigher thereto then Orford. Now the Prior & Cannons of Woodbridge beganne to stirre for a market to be holden in that Towne, w^{ch} comming to a suite before the king, by reason of the opposition made by the Towne of Ipsw^{ch}, It was at length agreed as followth:

1161. 19 Novemb: 8. H. II.

Whereas a market uppon Wednesday in every weeke was indeavoured by the Prior and Cannons of Woodbridge (b) to be holden in that Town:

The said Prior and Cannons did grant and give to the Burgesses of Ipsw^{ch} for ever one moiety of the said market at Woodbridge, wth all the Customs, Tolls, and other appurtenances whatsoever to the said moiety belonging. And the said Burgesses shall have their servants in y^e said market, together wth the servants of the said Priour and Cannons, to receive Toll and all other benefit in the said moiety of the said market emergent. And the said Prior and Cannons have granted and given unto the said Burgesses a peece of ground in y^e said market, in lengthe thirty foote, and in bredthe twenty foote, to build a house thereon where they may putt their p^t of the market, and other things w^{ch} concern them; ffor w^{ch} ground the Burgesses shall pay to the Prior and Canons yerely fower pence at the feast of Michalmass. And the said Burgesses shall be free from all Toll and other Customs in the said market for ever.

Witness. W^m: priour of Trinity, Tho: de Otley, Osbert de Baudresey, knights; John de Belmis, Geoff: de Belmis, Then Bayliffs of Ipsw^{ch}. Rog. Lew, Amis Bolle, &c.

And thus they camme off upon equal terms, w^{ch} was a good bargaine in those dayes, wherein the Clergy were assendant. But the kings favour yet further cleared itselfe to this Towne under the broad scalle, by gr^t of priviledges, as flowers gathered out of his owne Gardein, where by he granted as followeth:

Charter of 40 Hen. II. (c)

All returns of writts concerning the inhabitants of this Towne and

(a) Mr. Canning thinks this a mistake.

(b) The Prior and Canons of Woodbridge did not exist in the time of Hen. 2. (C.)

(c) This seems to be a mistake; it should be "Charter of 40 H. III.," for (with other reasons) II II. did not reign 40 years. (J.S.)—(Dat. Westminster, 15 April, 1256.)

the liberties thereof: That the Bayliffs of this Towne shall be immediately accomptant unto the Exchequer. That no Sheriff or Bayliff shall meddle in summoning, or attaching, or distraining, in the said Towne, unless in default of the Burgesses or Bayliffs of the Towne.

That the Burgesses shall from amongst themselves elect, and make Coroners wthin the Towne and Attachem^s in crowne ples within the said Towne and liberties of the same, & shall give accompt thereof to the Judges Itinnerant in those pts.

That all marchants wth all their marchandise, as well of fishe as other commodities coming to the Port of Ipsw^{ch}, shall have free passage comming and going, and free trade.

That there shall be noe Brokers of marchandise to hinder the Trade in the said Towne. Thus the sheriffs, coroners, and other County officers are excluded from having any power wthin this towne, and the power of the Towne extended to all manner of causes and ples within it selfe, whereof any court in Hundred or County could take any cognisance, and henceforth Coroners become a name of office in this town, and the psons are so farre forth adjoynd to the governm^t as the additionall power of crowne ples will extend, but not to make them essentiall members of the corporacon, wthout whome noe administration of justice or act of councill could pass, for as to these the Towne was fully inabled before any Coroner was ever elected wthin this towne.

RICH: I.

In this kings time little is found as touching this Towne, saving that about his seventh yere he confirmed the liberties thereof; but it cost the Towne sixty marks, besides an hundred shillings increase in the yerely farme, for the holding of the Towne in their own hand (a). And yet it was inferiour to the farme in the Conquerours time, for that was 37^{li} yerely, and this but thirty and five.

And towards the latter end of his reigne he gave the Hamlett of Wicks, a member of Ipsw^{ch}, to Joh:, Bp. of Norw^{ch}, paying to the Towne of Ipsw^{ch} tenne pounds (b), so as still it remained parcell of the fee farme.

JOHN: K.

By this time the corporacons of England, by experience finding that the kings writt was soe commonly granted to the hindrance of their courts and other liberties, toke generall Charters of grant and

(a) Mr. Canning thinks this "strangely misunderstood."

(b) It was the reverse of this. The town paid ten Pounds p. an. to the Bishop, which was allowed to the Town out of the Fee-farm-rent, or rather, it was allow'd to those who farmed the Town of the Crown.—Vid. the Copy of the Roll in Domesday. (C.)

confirmacon of their liberties, rath^r to be in nature of estoppells to the crowne, then out of any desire of increase of priviledge. And in the first yere of his reigne he granted as followeth :

Charter 1^o John. [Dat. Gold Cliff, Monm. 25 May, 1199.]

The Burrough of Ipsw^{ch} with all the liberties and free customs granted and confirmed, to hold to the Towne and their heires rendring the wonted rent, to be payed to the Excheq^r by the preposit['] of Ipsw^{ch} wth one hundred shillings over by increase at the same time. And immunity from Tollage, Lastage, Stallage, Passage, Pontage, and other Customs by land and sea. That none of the inhabitants shall sue wthout their liberty, unless in plees of forraigne tenure, (excepting the kings servants). That they shall have a March['] Guild, and their Hans or freedome. That noe man shall take free Quarter, nor shall take anything by force wthin the Towne. That they shall hold Law of their lands and tenem^{ts} wthin their liberties, according to their custome. And of debts lent wthin their Towne and pledges there made. They shall not be amerced but according to the law of free Burgesses. The liberties and ffranchess of London saved.

The Burgesses by common councill of the Town may elect two loyall and discreete men of their Towne, and them present before the Chiefe Justice in the Excheq^r, to be sworne well and faithfully to keepe the governm^t of that Towne of Ipsw^{ch}. And they shall not be removed soe long as they behave themselves well, unless by the Common Councill of the Towne.

That they may elect fower Coroners to hold their Crowne plees wthin the Towne, and doe other things belonging to the Crown, and to see that the governm^t be well ordered.

Heres much by confirming and little by granting. The second, third, and fourth, may add muche, the rest tells us rather what the king was willing they should hold, then what they should have, and therein strooke on both sides, else on the one side would he not have urged a journey up to London to take the othe, nor on the other allowed the Common Councill of the Towne to have putt out their governors without breach of good behaviou^r. Although I denie not but there may be causes of disability that extend not to morality.

In the same first yere of his reigne the king likewise granted a ffayer to the sick house of Mary Magdalen of Ipsw^{ch} (a), to be yerely holden at Ipsw^{ch} uppon St James day, and to continue for two dayes, unless it shall be prejudiciall to the neighbouring ffares.

(a) This Hospitall was (9 H. 8.) said to be annexed to the Rectory of St Hellens of Caldwell; soe a box of Houses of St Hellens, late Mr Toolies, soe as by the dissolution the faire camme to y^e Town. (B.)

Ordinances devised by the Bayliffs, Coroners, and Portmen, by direction of the last Court, are now brought into the Court, read, and allowed by the same. The same Bayliffs elected for the next yere. The Common Sealle made and brought into the Court, is allowed.

The Bayliffs, with Peter Peper, Norman Halinothe, Clement le Palmer and Seman de Ponte, are ordered to levy the Customes of the Towne, and to pay the ffee ffarme.

Two Bedells or Serjeants are elected; one of whome to kepe the Gaole, viz. John Prickheart, the other was John Hane.

They granted to the Portmen Oldenholme medow for their horses. They ordered Domesday booke to be made.

A recog. of debt to Thurston del Clay by Hugh Peché, under penalty of 5ⁱⁱ to the Bayliffs, besides liberty of seisure of all the Cognisors goods and Chattells wthin y^e liberty of Ipswch. rot. m: p:

1255-6. 40 Hcn: III.

A recognisance of contract for paym^t of money, and for want of payment, that the Bayliffs shall turn the detors wife and children out of doores, & seise & keep the house and goods till the debt paide.

In a plea of a messuage, the defend^t appared, and demanded the view, w^{ch} was granted to be uppon the same day, being the Lords Day betwene the hours of one & nine.

An acon of wast brought against ten^t in dower of a moity of a messuage, and because the tenant in dower could not find sureties to uphold the same in as good condition as shee received it, the same was recovered by the plaintiff for ever, wth dammages for the wast done.

In an accon brought against the Prior of Trinity, he did appere, and because he had distrained his ten^t by his own Baly, wthout the notice of the Bayliffs of the Towne, The Prior submitted & was amerced.

In an accon of dower of a moity, as of her reasonable p^t, the def^t called to warranty.

Tenant in remainder in fee brought an action of wast against his tenant for life, whoe appeared and confessed the wast, and found four suerties to repaire and maintaine the same during his life, The Court gave him a yeres time to repaire, under perill of loss of his estate for life & payment of dammages.

A contract, and for security of paym^t of the mony, the party bound himselfe, his heires, and executors, and all his goods and chattles wthin y^e manner of Brookes, wthin the liberties of Ipsw^{ch}, & the Bayliffs may distraine the same, and them kepe until the debt be paide.

One brother brought his action against his other brother, for refusing to admitt him to have his moity of a messuage in Ipsw^{ch} dissending to them both as heires to their father, and becaus the defendant could not gainsay it, judgem^t passed for the plaintiff to have a moiety, and if any wast be doune, the defend^t was to have the place wasted for his moiety.

Cap: 1. Plees of right and freehold held before the Bayliffs every Thursday fortnight. And on the same day and place the Crowne plees before them and the Coroners. These are called Greate Courts or Portmans Mootes. Excepted cutt purses and thieves taken at the suite of strangers in faire or markett.

Small plees betweene inhabitants by pledge, are pleadable twice eache week before the Bayliffs, unless for cause otherwise adjourned.

Pleas of P^rpouders are adjournable from day to day, if eyther of the pties pray the same.

Plees in ffaire are adjournable from hower to hower if betwene strangers, and begunne in that ffaire.

Maritime plees are adjournable from tide to tide, if betweene strange passengers, being Mariners.

In all ples of Pepouder, ffaire and Marine, is allowed three Essoignes for sickness to deathe, ply if it be desired.

And the like in all ples by or wthout writt, as well after apparance as before, Excepting in Ples of ffresh abatent and Nusance.

Cap: 2. And except ples of ten^{ts} in Common or Parcenery, and voucher to warr^t in Common. In all w^{ch} cases, if one of them demand essoigne, and others appeare, and would be essoigned to another day, they shall not be allowed therto, nor to sever in essoigne.

Cap: 3. Executors, though never soe many, shall have but one essoine to them all before apparance, and but one after apparance.

Cap: 4. Small ples, whither wth or wthout writte, where three essoines are allowed, essoigne for the kings service shall be allowed, unless in Pepoudres, ffares and Maritime ples, in w^{ch} noe such shall be allowed to eyther ptie.

And suche essoine shall not be allowed to a woman, but where the law alloweth it.

Essoines cast at the greate Court, shall be adjourned to the next greate Court, and suche as are Cast at the petit Courts, shall be adjourned to the next petit Court after 15 days.

At w^{ch} time, let the party beware that he have his essoigne ready, or otherwise it shall turne to a default, and nevertheless he shall be amerced 2^s.

Let every man advise that he beginne his plaint according to the nature of his accon, for according therto shall the essoines be allowed, and the plee determined.

Cap: 5. Writts of Right must be of Tenem^{ts} pleadable within the Towne.

The tenant shall be summoned at the tenem^t in demand by two free men, to appeare at the day of the next Greate Court, and soe for want of apparance to three summons, and after them to three distresses.

If the ten^t then appeare, he may have three essoins upon demand; But if default be after the essoines, the tenem^t in demand shall be seised by lawfull men of the next visnee. And the tenant againe summoned to answere the accon and default.

If the tenant will have reseisure or restitution, he must at his perill plead before or upon the fifteenth day following, or he may lose his land.

If the demand^t will stand upon the default, The tenant must defend the summons and distresses by wager of law, that he was not summoned nor distrained according to the Custome, or that the essoignes were not demanded by him or by his consent. After w^{ch} law, the tenant may have three essoines against the demand^t, if the tenant will demand them. And this wager of law shall be by twelve. After the law soe made, the demandant shall loose his writt, and be amerced, and the tenant is at liberty.

If the ten^t make default in making of his Law, the demand^t may have seisin, and the tenant amerced. If any person shall come before Judgement and shew good title of right, by jointenancy or otherwise, that the default of the tenant ought not to prejudice him, he shall be received to defend his right. And this shall hold for fems covert as well as others.

But if the demand^t shall wave all defaulte, and hold him to the Chiefe plea, and plead according to the common Law, excepting in joyning of the Mise, the tenant shall cast himself upon the Grand assize, for determining whoe hath the more right, according to the demand^{ts} plea.

Noe trial by Battaile is allowed by the Custome of this Towne.

The Bayliffs shall elect fower men in open court to elect the jury, and the Elizors shall presently be sworne to elect the most fitt and able men, and soe they shall be adjourned to the next greate court to bring in the panell.

If it be brought in, summons shall goe to the jury to appeare at the next great court to give their verdict.

If the Elizors come not at their adjournm^t, summons shall issue forth, and if they come not at the next greate court, they shall be amerced, and attached by mainpernours; if default be, the mainpernours shall be amerced, and another attachment by sixe mainpours shall issue forth, and soe from court to court, the mainpours shall be amerced till apperance. And when they appeare, they shall be sworne again as formerly, to impanell forthwith 24 able men at the least, in regard of Challenges. And these 4 Elizors shall be the first in the panell, if the pties will concent.

If the tenant come in after 3 essoignes, and demand the view, he shall have it, if the demand^t make it not apparant that he hath already had it in some other writt of the same nature.

After the Mise joyned, the pties may have their essoignes if they will.

If any ten^t of land wthin the Towne be vouched to warrant in any plee of land, it shall be by good summons, three times if neede be, by two free men.

And after apparance, the vouchee may have three essoines: if after them he shall make default, his lands in vallew shall be seised, and the process at the Common Law shall be awarded upon such default, and if the vouchee appeare and enter into warranty, he shall defend his right as at the Common Law, except as joyning the Mise & Battaile.

And if the tenant vouch forrain voucher, when the vouchee hath sufficient wthin the liberty of the Towne, and the plaintiff will averr the same, and the tenant will not accept of the averrm^t, and the demand^t esseneth by good inquest to prove the same, and demandeth judgem^t of the voucher, and if it be found by verdict, the demand^t shall have seisin of the tenem^t in demand, and the Tenant shall be amerced. But if the contrary be found, then the forrain voucher shall be awarded for good.

If the forrain voucher be by ayde of the kings Court, and the demand^t allow thereof, the parties shall be adjourned to the next great Court, and then shall have three essoines if they will, and if the tenant then maketh default in his voucher, or bringeth not his certiorari by the day given, and the defendant thereupon demand judgem^t, he shall have seisin of the Tenement in demand, and the tenant shall be amerced.

And the same process shall be against the jurors, if they make default, as is aforesaid for the elizors.

Cap: 6. A plee of abatem^t or fresh force, is for disseisins of freeholds pleadable wthin the Towne, w^{ch} must be prosecuted (wthin forty dayes after the disseisin first committed) by pledges.

The Bayliffs, uppon complaint and pledges found, shall seise the tenem^t, and deliver the same into the hands of two of the next neighbours, to kepe till judgem^t pass.

The disseisor shall finde pledges to answer at the day. And if he appeare not, or wil finde noe pledges, he shall be summoned by two free men.

And against the day of apparance, an assize shall be arained of 12 men of the visnee, who shall have view of the place, &c.

If the parties doe appeare and plead, the assize shall be taken according to the plea.

If the disseisor make default, and the same be awarded, the assize shall pass uppon the default, and dammages shall be taxed, and the dessor amerced and seisin delivered, as in Novel disseisin.

If the disseisor hold by force, the Bayliffs shall remove the force. If the force can not be removed without perill, the Bayliffs in the presence of one or two Coroners and others, shall seise and pronounce the seisin to be by force, and soe to be null, although it continued 40 dayes. And after such 40 dayes, the plea shall be executed against the disseisor in like manner as wthin the first forty daies.

If the disseisee dothe not prosecute wthin 40 dayes after the abatem^t, he is without remedy by his plea.

If the disseisee at the time of Abatem^t be in prison, or not of sound minde, or beyond the sea, he shall have 40 dayes after he shall be at liberty, or of sound mind, or comme from beyond sea, to prosecute the Abatem^t.

The same process shall be used where the plaintiffs plea shall be abated for insufficiency, provided that he doe amend his plea, sitting the court.

Noe essoines shall be allowed to eyther pty in this plea.

The Defend^t in this plea may appeare by his Bailly.

Cap: 7. In a plea of Nusance of freehold, proceedings shall be by pledges. And wthin 40 dayes after the Nusance, levied, if the plaintiff be not beyond the sea, or not of sound minde, or in prison, otherwise he can have noe remedy wthout the kings writt.

If the plaintiff be disabled in any of the cases aforesaid, he shall have the first 40 dayes after such disability removed, to prosecute, &c. In all proceedings in this case, by or wthout writt, the defend^t shall be attached by pledges. If he be not found, or will not find pledges, summons shall issue at the place where, &c., and at the day. And against that day an assize shall be arraigned, (as in other case) whoe shall have the view. And if they finde the Nusance, judgem^t shall be to abate the same in the presence of the jurors, and they shall assesse dammages, and the defend^t shall be amerced.

If the defend^t make default in apparance or pleading, judgem^t and execution shall pass thereuppon as aforesaid.

The pties may in court agree that the matter may be determined by the Bayliffs and neighbors wthout plea, and if not, that the plea shall procede.

In this plea, noe essoine shall be allowed to eyther party. But if it be by writt, three essoines shall be allowed.

Cap: 8. If ten^t for life, dower, or ffrank Bank, or yeres, committ wast, or suffer the same, he in the revers: or remainder shall have his plea of wast before the Bayliffs, by pledges as well as by writ. And uppon the plaint the defend^t shall be summoned by two freemen, &c.

And if at the 3^d summons noe apparance shall be, the Bayliffs and Coroners shall goe to the place, and by the othes of 12 men shall taxe dammages. And then another summons by 2 men, &c., shall issue to cause the defend^t to appeare, and finde suerties to reaire the wast and abide judgem^t of the Court.

At w^{ch} day no essoine shall be allowed to the defend^t.

And if noe apparance by him, and the summons proved, judgem^t shall passe for recovery of the place wasted, and the dammages taxed and the defend^t amerced in regard of soe many defaults.

But if the defend^t appeare at the three first summons, or after the inquest taken, and acknowledge the wast, and shall find suerties to reaire the same by the view, in as good condicon as he received the same, by a sett day he shall be received therto: and if he will not finde suerty, he shall loose the place wasted and dammages.

Yet before he shall be received, the Bayliffs shall taxe dammages by the jury, and the suerties shall answere therefore.

If the wast be not repayred by the day, the plaintiff shall have summons by two freemen for the defendant to show cause whye seisin should not be delivered, and if the defend^t comme not, or shew not cause by a later and higher title, it shall be delivered, and the defend^t amerced.

If the defend^t appeare, and counterplead, and the verdict pass against him, then the plaintiff shall recover seisin and dammages, and the defend^t shall be amerced.

If after the wast repaired, the defend^t shall againe committ or suffer wast, he shall for ever loose the place and damms.

In a plea of wast, 3 essoines shall be allowed for eyther pty after apparance uppon the summons. But if apparance be after the Inquest uppon the summons to shew cause, noe essoine shall be allowed.

Cap: 9. In alienacon of tenem^{ts} by husband and wife, wherein shee hath any right. After livery and seisin, If they come into the Court before y^e Bayliffs, and acknowledge the tenem^t to be the purchasers according to the deede, and bring the same deed: The wife shall be examined apart by the said Bayliffs, and if she declare her free consent therto, the same shall be good and soe enrolled, and they shall binde the wife and her heirs, and the same shall be published before the Coroners and Townsmen, whether she shall be joint purchaser wth her husband or hold by inheritance.

But where the tenem^t is granted in ffranchmariage, or uppon condition, where the fee is intailed to the husband and wife and heires of the^m, or the reversion limited to the Donor and his heires, or in remainder to any after the deathe of such feoffees, noe recognisance shall be allowed to barr the limitations, reversions, or remainders thereuppon, but the same shall be recovered in the Towne Court by the kings writt according to the Custome, notwthstanding such recognisance.

In like manner shall the wife and her heires be bound by acknowledgement made by process, or plee, or their release.

And if the seisin and estate uppon such recognisance be not good and sufficient, and the tenem^t come after into demand, the demand^t shall avoid such recognisance by putting uppon inquest that noe seisin was of the land before the recognisance, or that the pty had no estate by the recognisance, nor in the same.

Cap: 10. If a neighbour house fall uppon, or by leaning uppon do indammage the next house in the said towne, the pty indammaged shall recover damage from him that owneth suche house by plea before the Bayliffs by pledges, and the dammages shall be taxed by the Inquest.

Cap: 11. Tenants in reversion or remainder, after estates for life or yeres, may alien in open court by deede, and the same shall be inrolled wth other cognisances of ffreehold. And the ten^t for life or yeres shall then be called by pledges to appeare at a certain day at the greate Court wthout essoine, to declare his right, and if default be, the pledges shall be amerced, and the ten^t distrained till he appeare. The tenant uppon apparance shall declare what right he claimeth, and if it be for life or yeres, he shall be enjoyned to atturue to him in reversion or remainder.

If the tenant will not finde pledges to appeare he shall be distrained, and further shall be summoned by two free men, and if he appeare not, and the summons witnessed, the distresse shall be adjudged to be forfeited.

If the tenant appeare, he may plead in barr of atturment if he hath cause. But noe summons shall issue against tenants for life or yeres if it shall appeare to the Court that they are in prison, or not of sound minde, or beyond sea, or if it appeares not to the Court till after summons, the summons shall be recalled.

The fforfaitures aforesaid shall goe to the use of the Towne, and not of the Bayliffs.

Cap: 12. If rent be issuing out of any ffranktenem^t, and the same be granted over by deed inrolled in the Court: The like processe shall issue to the pty w^{ch} demandeth the rent to appeare at the next great Court to show his right, and if he demandeth the rent, he shall be ordered to atturue to the grantee.

If he disclaimeth to hold of the recognisor, and the recognisee will averr that he did hold of the recognisor at the time of the recognisance, such disclaimer shall not be received.

If the pty that claims the rent will not accept of suche averm^t, he shall be enjoyned to atturue. And if he refuse the same, the cognisee shall have a distresse for the rent, and avow thereuppon according to the Custome.

If the tenant can plead good cause against atturment, it shall be received.

Cap: 13. In case of Abatement of rent by inclosier, the remedy shall be by ffrsh abatem^t as in Novel disseisin in the Kings Court; viz: the Plea shall be attached wthin the first forty days after the first deniall, and if deniall shall be after the distresse, they may not distraine as formerly, but the distresse shall be for double dammagages, and the like for every deniall afterwards made.

Cap: 14. If any tenen^t lets his tenem^t lie fresh, and cease to agree wth the lessor for the areres, by the space of 4 termes, the lo: shall have his plea of Customes and Services, and thereby demand his tenem^t before the Bayliffs, and dammagages, and if agreem^t be not made, the tenem^t shall be delivered to the lord for a yere and a day, and if no agreem^t be then made, the lord shall hold on for another like time, and if agreem^t be then, he shall hold the tenem^t for ever.

Cap: 15. In distresse for rent, if the ten^t reedeeme his distress by pledges, or if he hinder distress by fforestall, the lo: shall recover in a plea of Abatem^t before the Bayliffs, as in Novel disseisin Before y^e Justices; viz., if he attache his plaint wthin 40 daies after deliverance of the distress, or after such disturbance.

Cap: 16. Purchasers of tenem^{ts} or rents in fee may devise the same by will as they shall please. And that devise, be it by writing or nuncupative, must be proved w^hin forty daies after the testator's death, by othe of 2 psons at the least, severally examined, and uppon the proof made it shall be inrolled, and administration shall be granted to the executrs after the forme of the prooffe, and seisin shall be delivered to the legatee by the executors by the view of the Bayliffs, Sauns chacoun distreit.

If the prooffe agree not, and the will therby made suspicious, it shall be holden for none, as touching the freehold bequeathed, and the same shall go to him that hath the right.

If the executors refuse to proove the will wthin 40 dayes aforesaid, or to deliver seisin to the legatee, And the legatee comme wthin the said first 40 daies, and pray summons to the executors to prove the will, or if they do not shew cause whie the legatee should not have seisin: Then they shall be summoned at the place bequeathed, to comme at the day, and make prooffe of the will, or show cause, &c; and if they come and make prooffe, they shall be therto received, and seisin shall be delivered accordingly.

If the executors comme not, the legatee may prove by inquest the legacy, and if it be found accordinly, seisin shall be delivered accordingly, salvo jure.

If the executors dye before probate, within the 40 dayes, theire executors shall be received to prove the will of the first testator. And if they will not comme, the legatee shall have the same remedy against them as in the former case against other executors.

Cap: 17. If a tenem^t devisable be bequeathed to an Infant, and the exec^{rs} refuse to prove, &c; the next friends of the inf^t shall be received to sue wth the inf^t, if the infant cannot sue by himselfe, and thereby shall compell the executors as formly.

And if the child be elaigned, the next freinds shall be received to doe for the child whatsoever himselfe might doe if he were present.

Cap: 18. If a tenement not devisable be bequeathed, the heire shall not be bound therby, but may have remedy by plea of Abatement within the first forty dayes after the will proved, and seisin delivered soone after the testator's death.

If he that ought make claim be demurrant en pais, out of prison, and of sound mind, and suffer the legatee to continue possession 40 dayes wthout claime, noe abatem^t lieth, allthough the tenem^t be not devisible. But his remedy must be by writt of Novel disseisin, or otherwise after the Custome of the Towne.

He that is out of the country, not knowing of such devise, or in prison, or not of sound mind : when those disabilities shall be removed, if he speedily put out by entry suche as he shall finde seised according to the bequest, and be putt out againe, he shall have the plea of Abatement according to the former course.

A child wthin the age of the Towne, that by himselfe or freinds doth not putt in his claime to the tenem^t devised wthin 40 dayes after death of the testator, or after seisin delivered, shall loose his advantage by plea of Abatem^t, yet when he commeth of full age, he may sue by the King's writt, by the Custome of the Towne.

Cap: 19. If a tenement be devised to one out of the country, the testam^t shall be proved as formerly, and seisin shall be delivered to his next freind in his name, to hold for him wthout wast doing till he shall comme.

And the form of the delivery shall be inrolled, and when the legatee is comme, he may enter wthout disturbance. And if disturbance be by the guardian or his heires, the Bayliffs shall cause seisin to be delivered after the forme of the inrollm^t, if the guardian or his heires show not a better title to barr the seisin.

If the guardian committ wast, the legatee shall recover dammages by pledges, according to the Custome, if he will sue for the same. If the guardian dye, and his heire enter, the legatee may enter wthout disturbance, and recover as against the Auncester.

If the guardian alien, and the legatee claime by devise, and enter, and be putt out, he may recover by abatem^t if he put in his plea wthin forty dayes after he is putt out. ffor that the freehold is accrewed by devise, and prooffe of the same, and by the seisin in his name.

If the executors will not prove the will, nor deliver seisin to the next freind, or to the legatee when he commeth : The legatee within 40 dayes after his comming into the country, may cause by process the executors to make proof of the will, and soe recover the same. Or by the King's writt may recover the same fro' any in possession thereof. And may averre the devise notwthstanding the want of probate. And if uppon inquest the same be found for the legatee, he shall recover damages double to what is taxed by the inquest, besides the meane profits, and dammages for wast, if any be committed, w^{ch} shall be taxed wth the other dammages.

Cap: 20. If rent be devised, after the will proved the legatee shall be putt in seisin thereof by the executors, if the tenant shall atturue.

If he will not, he shall be commanded to appeare, and uppon apparance shall declare of whome he did hold at the testator's deathe, and of whome he holdeth, and by what service, and if he acknowledgeth his tenure of the testator by such rent, he shall be commanded to attorne to the legatee.

In this case no essoine shall be allowed.

If the tenant will not finde mainprise, or suffer them to be amerced, the same process shall be as in case of atturnm^t of legatees for life or yeares.

If the tenant shall appeare and disclaime to hold of the testator, and deny that he payed him any such rent, the legatee may averr the contrary, and if the other will not accept thereof, the Court shall order him to attorne, which if he refuse, the legatee shall distraine, and avow by vertue of the order of the Court, and the devise aforesaid. And after such order or award, the ten^t shall never be admitted to disclaime, unless by a latter title then the bequest.

If such as were at the will making will not comme to prove the same, the legatee may averr the bequest by inquest of the neighbourhood where the testator died.

Noe married woman can bequeath any freehold in the same towne in disherison of his heirs, although the husband will assent.

Cap: 21. The nourture of every heire after the auncest^r's death belong to the next parent of the father's or mother's side to whom the inheritance cannot descend, and this shall continue to the full age, according to the Custome of the town (viz., to fowerteene yeres) wthout doing wast; and when the full age shall be accomplished, the heire shall enter wthout disturbance, and shall have the meane proffits, and all the cattaile with their proffits, saving expences in the sustenance of the heire, and amending of the houses and other things concerning the inheritance.

And if the Guardian shall committ wast, he shall loose the guardianship, if he findeth not sufficient suerties to repaire the wast, and to maintaine the same in repaire (till the heir shall comme of the aforesaid age) in as good condicon as he received it. And one of the heire's next freinds shall be received to take security, and allsoe to sue in case of wast aforesaid, in the name of the heire, if he be of such tender age as he cannot sue by himselfe.

Cap: 22. In ples of debt, detinue of charters, accompt, and of Justicies. The process when the plaintiff hathe attached his writt, a summons shall issue to cause the def^t to appeare; if he dothe not appeare, the summons shall be recorded, And an attachment by pledges shall issue. If he yet make default, and suffer his pledges to be amerced, then an attache^t by four pledges; if they be amerced for default, an attachement by eight pledges. And if yet default be made: distresses shall issue from Court to Court upon all his goods and chattells wthin the liberty, wthin house or wthout, till hee doe appeare.

If the defend^t keepeth his goods wthin doores under lock and key, the house and all therein shall be sequestered till the defend^t in due manner will be justified, w^{ch} attachem^{ts}, distresses, and sequestrations shall be the like in all p^{lees} by burrough and pledge as in p^{lees} that hang by writt, except that in p^{lees} wthout writt, which touch not the freehold, noe summons be first awarded.

Cap: 23. In pleas of Battery, blouddraught, Hamsockne, and other trespasses against the peace: If the defend^t will not find suerties and have noe Chattells, and the same be recorded, he shall be attached till he finde suerties, or brought forthwth before the Bayliffs to answer. And if he shall be attainted of the fact by inquest, Dammages shall be taxed by the inquest, or by award of the Court.

If the defend^t be a common offender in suche case for blood draught wth weapon, he shall be imprisoned 15 dayes ffor Battery, wth Hamsockne wthout bloodshed he shall be imprisoned 15 dayes.

ffor Battery and bloodshed wth Hamsockne, he shall be imprisoned 20 dayes or more, as the case is more or less perillous.

If the defend^t be noe common offender, in suche case the defend^t may be discharged of imprisonment after agreem^t for dammages.

If any in prison in the case aforesaid make an escape, his paine shall be doubled, but if the gaoler suffer an escape wthout the Bayliffs' assent, there beeing in suche case dammages taxed, the gaoler shall answer the dammages, and suffer further punishm^t by the Bayliffs for his offence.

Cap: 24. In assault upon one of the Bayliffs, or disturbance in doing their office in the presence of one of the Coroners, or other honest men of the Towne, soe as the offence may be proved by one sworne coroner, or by the othe of 2 or 3 psons of credite, eye witnesses of the same, or otherwise by inquest: the offender shall be committed to prison by order of the coroner and other good people of the Towne, there to be kept till he have made amends to the p^{ty} offended, and hath satisfied the dammages ordered by the coroners and other people of the Towne, and otherwaies punished for wrong to the Towne, in the despite done to their Bayliffe. And the p^{ty} shall find suerties to answer the King for the offence against him.

If any of the Towne give any reproachfull words to the Bayliffs, in Court or out of Court, doing their office, and shall be thereof convicted in manner aforesaid, he shall be imprisoned, and shall finde good suerty to answer the same before the Coroners and other people of the Towne.

Cap: 25. The same punishm^t shall be ordered by the Bayliffs and people of the Towne against suche as trespasse in like manner against any of the Coroners of the Towne doing their office.

Cap: 26. Trespasses by assalt, stroke, or wound, upon any of the under Bayliffs doing their office, or by hindrance of them in arresting, or disturbance of them in their office, upon conviction shall be committed to prison, and otherwise punished by amends made to the party and to the Court, according as the fault shall be greater or smaller.

Cap: 27. Wardens shall be appointed for the fish market, to inform against Regrators and forestallers. And upon conviction for the first offence, the offender shall forfeit the goods forestalled, and nevertheless satisfy the seller of the same, and he shall furthermore be imprisoned. And if he hath not ability to satisfy the seller, the goods forestalled shall be delivered to him, and the offender shall remain in prison till he satisfy the Towne for the value of the goods forestalled. And for the 2^d offence, the offender shall be put in the Pillory without favour, besides the loss of the goods, and satisfaction done to the seller or Towne as aforesaid. And for the third offence, the offender shall abjure the occupation for a year and day, and lose the goods forfeited as aforesaid. And the like for poulters.

Cap: 28. Regrators that buy and sell the same commodity in the same market, shall forfeit the fish so bought, and be imprisoned, and be set in the Pillory, and abjure the trade for a year and day.

If any shall take out of the possession of such as bring fish to market against their wills, and sell them in the same market, over and besides the forfeiture aforesaid, they shall be imprisoned for breach of peace.

Cap: 29. These ordinances, because they tolerate regrating, and concerne only that present time, I omit.

Cap: 30. Sellers of corrupt fish shall for the first offence forfeit such their fish for the poorer, and for the 2^d offence, besides the forfeiture, be set in the pillory. And for the third offence shall forfeit such their fish, and abjure their trade for a year and day.

Cap: 31. Against minglers of corn brought to market, but no penalty set.

Cap: 32. The like of corrupt fowles.

Cap: 33. In Contracts between Marchants. If either party will deny the contract concerning which a plea is depending: If the one party will wage his law, he shall not be received thereto, if the other party will prove the same by witnesses, or aver the same by Inquest. And the like in contracts where payment is appointed forthwith, or within a short time, so as no writing nor tally is given for the money.

The marchant also that is to pay the money shall be allowed to aver by good Inquest that he oweth not the money demanded. And in both cases proof shall be by two witnesses severally examined.

In the case of delivering goods to keep, the Baylee shall not be allowed to wage his law, if the Baylor will aver and make proof of the delivery of them by good men severally examined.

Cap: 34. ffor debt or dammages taxed in the court, if noe agreem^t be first made, the complainant shall have distress out of the Court of goods wthin the liberty, as well wthin doores as wthout, from day to day, till the full vallew shall be received. And if the defend^t doe not come to agreem^t wthin the first 40 dayes after distress, the distress shall be brought into Court, and the pty distrained by two men shall be warned to comme at the next court and acquite the distress, and to come to agreem^t. And if he comme not at the day, or doe not make agreem^t, The distress shall be apprised in court by sworn men, and warning shall be given to the party by the Bayliffs if he be present in Court, or if not, by any other warning that he doe appeare at the next Court to agree.

If then allsoe default be in appearing or agreem^t, the distress shall be delivered to the complain^{ts} for the price, and the overplus, if any, be to the defend^t.

If the distress amount not to the vallew, the remnant shall be forthwth levied by distress. And the Sub-bayliff shall be punished by Bayliffs for failing in the full vallew, unless they can shew good cause to the cont.

The prisers, if by collusion they overvallew the distress, they shall have the goods and answere the price.

Debt or dammages taxed in the Court by judgement or recognisance in the behaf of forrainers, passingers, or mariners ariving at the Port, or stranger passingers at the time of faire or market, the greatest speed that can be shall be used for the levy of the same, having no regard to the time of 40 dayes for keeping of the distresse as aforesaid. And if the goods be shut up under lock and key, that distresse can not be made, the house or place shall be sequestered, wth all the chattells therein, and soe shall remaine till agreem^t made.

If any pson doe break suche sequestration and carry away any p^t of the goods, he shall be imprisoned till the goods be restored, or the vallew, or that agreem^t be made wth the pty for the debt, or &c.

And nevertheless he shall be punished for his offence.

And when the goods are restored, the Bayliffs shall levy the debt uppon the same.

Cap: 35. In pleas of land, dammages shall be taxed by Inquest, and the same shall stand. But in other plees, the dammages taxed by Inquest at too low a rate, may be increased by the Bayliffs and Court.

Cap: 36. Noe inhabitant whatsoever of this Towne shall take any goods or marchandise of any strangers comming to this Towne, wthout agreem^t wth them made for paym^t at a sett day. And if paym^t be not made accordingly at the day prefixed, and complaint be made to the Bayliffs therof, they shall forthwth cause the debt to be levied of the goods of suche person wthin and without house, and make agreem^t wth suche marchant for his debt wthout waiting 40 dayes as formerly.

If the debtor shall not have sufficient goods, he shall be disfranchised, and never to be restored till he shall finde good suerty to answere, and restore all the debt and dammage, as well to the march^t as any other of the Towne that shall be indamaged by his default.

The Bayliffs shall cause such security to be inrolled.

If a forrainer shall be inhabitant in this town, and shall make contract wth any march^t as aforesaid, and make default, or is not sufficient to make paym^t: he shall be by the Court forejudged to make any manner of marchandise by him selfe, or other in his stead for him, till he shall have made agreem^t wth the marchant as touching suche contract.

Cap: 37. Contracts for marchandise of victuall, or such like, in Bulk, comming by water, shall be recorded before the Bayliffs of the Towne, or one of them, if it be desired, wth the suerty for pformance, if any suerty be given.

And then the marchandise shall be viewed and searched by the Bayliffs or one of them and fower other sworne men. And if the marchandise prove not sufficient as at the first view it did seeme, the price and payment shall be abated according to reason, provided there be no collusion in the fower searchers.

Cap: 38. If a march^t stranger's hoste shall be seller of theire marchandise, they shall answer ther march^{ts} at the full, and if they doe not, the same pcess shall be against them as against other ill payers.

If march^{ts} make contracts wthout their host's council, and wthout knowledge of the Bayliffs, or survey as aforesaid, the dammage shall light uppon themselves, if default of paym^t shall be.

Cap: 39. All the tenem^{ts} in the said town are partible, as well betweene the heires male as heires female, If gift or bequest dothe not not alter the same.

If any of the heires will demand his part, a partition shall be.

Partition by concent; the eldest shall first chuse, and the rest shall be by lott.

If any shall refuse the partition, the pty that is disturbed shall recover before the Bayliffs by pledges against the disturber, if he shall sue wthin 40 days after disturbance.

If he sueth not wthin 40 dayes, he shall loose his remedy before the Bayliffs by such plea.

After the plaint attached summons shall issue by two free men to appear at the next Portman moote to answere the plea of Reasonable part, and uppon defalt, a second and third summons shall issue.

After the summons there shall be three essoines, if they shall be demanded.

Uppon apparance after the summons, or after the essoines, and noe cause shewed whie the demand^t should not have his part; or if he make default, the plaintiff shall have judgem^t for his part, wth dammages, and the disturber shall be amerced.

The taxacon of the dammages shall be respited till the partition be made.

ffor if the disturber hath donne any wast, the place wasted shall be assigned him for his part. And if he hath done wast in the place, that shall fall to the demand^t; the wast shall be taxed wth the dammages by two sworne men.

The Bayliffs shall therefore soon after judgement aforesaid make partition and deliver to the plaintiff his part by lott; and the partition shall be made by twelve sworn men.

After that, summons by two free men shall Isue to the disturber to heare the record, and his judgem^t of the said Taxacon at the next Portman moote.

Whither he comme or comme not, judgem^t shall (if summons be proved) be executed against him.

If the eldest partner be the disturber, he shall loose his election, and shall take by lott.

Cap: 40. In a plee of tenem^t pleadable, if any deed of the plaintiff be pleaded in Barr, testified by witnesses within the liberty, the deed shall be tried. But if they be not wthin the liberty, so that the Bayliffs power cannot extend to send for them, The plea shall not stay, nor the proof of the writing more then if the witnesses were dead.

Cap: 41. In Debt uppon tally not sealed, between marchants, and the defendant will wage his law, it shall not be received If the demand^t will by law march^t prove the tally to be the defend^{ts} deed.

The witnesses shall be two sufficient men severally examined, and eyewitnesses of suche as have heard the defend^t acknowledge the same.

If the debt be found by prooffe, the demand^t shall recover debt and dammages, and def^t amerced.

If the prooffe vary, judgement shall be as may best appeare, and the Tally shall be damned.

But if debt be demanded uppon Tally not sealed, out of law march^t, the defendant shall be received to travers by enquest or by law wager.

Cap: 42. Every Burgesses son and heire may wthin 40 dayes after his fathers deathe, demand his freedom, and shall tender his fathers sword in court; and sweare to be trew to the ffranchise of the Towne and to kepe the councill of the Towne secret.

And untill this be done, he shall be sequestred from being present at any councill of the Towne.

If there be many sonns, the elder brother shall present the sworde in behalfe of all that will be sworne as aforesaid.

Cap: 43. Noe Burgess may distraine another Burgess for debt or trns wthout complaint made first to the Bayliffs.

Cap: 44. A forrainer indebted to a Burgess, his Chattels comming through the Town may be arested by the Burgess till he may have a Bayliff to whome he may attache his plea to sue.

Cap: 45. If a Burgess attache marchandise wthin the Liberty of the Towne, and a forrainer be present and challenge pt of the same marchandise, the fforainer shall not have that part by him claimed.

But if a fforainer attache marchandise, and a Burgess be present and claime pt, he shall have his part.

Cap: 46. The view of ffree pledge wthin the Towne shall be holden allwaies in whitsun weeke, and the purprestures wthin the Towne shall be remedied by view of the Bayliffs and Chiefe pledges wthin 40 dayes after.

Cap: 47. In ples by the King's writt of tenem^{ts} wthin the Towne, the Bayliffs, after the writt broken open before them, shall inhibit the defend^t from wast making.

If, notwithstanding the same, (the demand^t recovering in the plea), the defend^t have committed wast, his damages taxed by the jury shall be awarded double against him, and he shall allsoe be grevously amerced.

The like process shall be used in ples of land wthout writ.

Noe inhibition of wast shall be wthout demand thereof.

Cap: 48. Noe person of the Towne shall take of poore men to paune any goods that are suspicious not to be theire owne.

If any shall doe otherwise and complaint be made to the Bayliffs by the owner, they shall cause the goods forthwth to be restored wthout recompense, If the party that did pledge them be soe poore that he can not answer the owner for the same.

Cap: 49. Any one in the same towne may have by plea attached by pledge his recovery of his goods stoln, in whose hand soever they shall be found, be they bought or otherwise. And he shall have his recovery against his Gageant by such waies as he can.

Cap: 50. The Bayliffs, or one of them, may admitt attorny for eyther pty to suit depending by or wthout writ, as well in Absence as presence of the party, and as well out of Court as in the same. And his record thereof shall be sufficient.

If eyther pty can not be present by reason of sickness, The Bayliffs may send one of theire serjeants or somme other pson to the party that is sick to take of him an Attorny in the said plea.

Cap: 51. The Bayliffs, or any one of them in any place wthin his Balywick, may take recognisance of debt in the presence of the Demand^t and the debtor, and shall inroll the same, and thereuppon grant execution. And after that noe averr^{mt} shall be received. But dammages shall not in suche case be taxed, or adjudged without process of plea.

Contracts of Marchandise between Marchants may be acknowledged before the Bayliffs, or Bayliffs and others in any place wthin their Baylywick. And the same shall be recorded, and noe averrm^t shall be received against the same. But such party as will averr contrary thereto, shall be by the court condemned after the law March^t. But noe suche recognisance shall be taken uppon the Bayliffs report after that he shall be removed out of office, if the recognisance be not found upon record.

Cap: 52. If a Burgess that is Per and Communcr, take a wife, whether maid or widow, soe as himselfe was not formerly married, and the wife overlive him, shee shall have the cheife house of her husbands wthin the Towne whereof he died seised in fee simple, as her ffrank Bank during her widowhood, wthout making wast or Alienation to the disherison of the heire.

And over and besides, shee shall be indowed of the moiety of the remnant in the same Towne whereof shee ought to be indowed.

And if her husband hath but one house wthin the Towne, the wife shall have the same in ffrank Bank: and the children of her husband shall be lodged therein with her.

Suche women as have not right of ffrank Bank shall abide in the cheif house of her husband forty dayes after the deathe of her husband, without wast doing.

During w^{ch} time the heire may of his own accord assigne her dower according to the Custome of the Town; viz: the moiety of all the tenem^{ts} and rents whereof her husband died seised in fee.

Cap: 53. If a Burgess denizin espouse a forraine woman and dye, his wife shall enjoy the ffranchise of the Towne during her widowhood.

Cap: 54. No landholder of land holden in this Towne by ffree Burgage shall doe homage or fealty to any cheif lord for such tenem^{ts}.

Nor shall any suche Cheife lord have any relief, ward, or mariage or any atturmn^t of service, but only paym^t of his rent and escheate when it is due by law.

This shall not excuse any Allegiance due to the king.

Noe fforrainer shall distraine any free man of this towne for rent wthout the Baylif of the Towne, That he may make deliverance of the distresse if neede be.

But Burgesses lottant and scottant may distraine their tenants for rent arere when they will, without the Bayliffs. Because if they impound the distresses where they ought not, they are answerable to the Bayliffs.

Cap: 55. A femme covert shall answer by her selfe in ples of trespass, or where payne of imprisonm^t of life dothe lye, but not in any trespass that touch the freehold.

Cap: 60. None but ffree Burgesses may be hosts to march^t forrainers, and such hosts shall counsell their march^{ts} how and to whome they shall sell, and for the same they shall have their forthe pt and noe more, after y^e price that the merchandise is sold, and the other three parts shall be sold to the good folk of the Towne.

If the hosts shall sell the merchandise, they shall answere the March^t for the whole.

If the march^{ts} sell theire goods without theire hosts counsell, yet shall their hosts have the fowrth part.

But march^t vintners selling wine out of theire sellers, or woad out of garners, shall not be answerable for the fourth part to theire hosts.

Cap: 61. Noe Burgess of this Towne shall implead any other burgess against the powers granted to the Town by Charters out of the liberties of the same, for anything w^{ch} by the sufferance of the law may be pleaded wthin the same towne.

If any shall doe otherwise he shall be admonished by the Bayliffs and two Burgesses y^t he shall proceed noe further under perill of disfranchisem^t.

And that if he will sue, he doe the same wthin the Towne.

If he shall still psist, he shall be summoned by the Bayliffs sworne, and two Burgesses of the Towne, to appeare at the next Portman moote to heare his judgement.

And whither he doe comme at the day or doe not comme, if the summons be duly witnessed, and noe cause shewen, he shall be disfranchised wthout reconciliation, unless by new creation, and fine for the same freedom, and for the Trouble and charge imposed upon the Towne.

Cap: 62. This shall not prejudice the right that any Burgess hathe by law to bring a writt of error, in case injustice be donne to him.

Cap: 63. Noe fforaine March^t shall be made ffree Burgess, if he have not lands and tenem^{ts} wthin the Towne wherein he may be distrained.

If any Burgess shall eloine himself out of Towne, or his chattells, or alien his tenem^{ts}, and will not be lottant and scottant, his ffranchise shall be repealed by the Bayliffs, Coroners, and people of the Towne.

If afterward he shall marchandise, he shall pay custome as a forrainer.

ffranchisement shall be granted to knights and gentlemen of the country only for their lives.

Cap: 64. If any of the Towne do borrow mony upon a pawne, to be paid at a certaine day, and the day is past, and the pawne not redeemed, the matter shall be shewed in court, and warning shall be given to the debtor by a certaine day to redeeme his pledge. If he comme and satisfy the Court, it shall be restored wthout damms.

If he comme not, or shew not good cause, the pledge shall be wholly at the will of the pty to whome the same is pledged.

Cap: 65. If any free Burgess shall divulge the Councill of the Towne, or counterpleade the ffranchise of the same, he shall be summoned to the Greate Court, and if he shall be there attainted, he shall be disfranchised.

Cap: 66. Any Burgess ffor collouring of goods shall be disfranchised, and shall pay custome if he marchandise, and shall not be restored but upon new fine.

Cap: 67. Marchandise comming by sea to the Towne to be sold, shall not be carried back to sea wthout license from the Bayliffs, nor shall they deny licence if it be demanded.

Nevertheless if it may be, the same shall be sould in the Towne or country if the buyer and seller can agree.

But if they shall be caried back, they shall pay Custome as well as from importing them.

Cap: 68. Noe marchandise comming by sea shall be sold after sun sett nor before sunnrise, unless fresh hering betwene Michalmas and St. Clements day, and that only by the hand of Burgesses and not strangers.

If any shall be found doing otherwise, he shall forfait all his marchandise, and be amerced 3^s 4^d for the first offence, and for the 2^d offence 6^s 8^d, and as offences multiply, so shall the penalty increase.

The marchandise forfeited shall be committed to two of the chief men, to be sold for the benefit of the Towne.

Cap. 69. Shell-fish shall be sold only by the hands of the Bringers.

Cap. 70. Suche wthin the Towne, whither male or female, being of fowerteen yeres of age and can recon and accompt, may alien lands and tenem^{ts} whereof they are seised in fee within the Towne, or lett or release the same.

If any of lesser age shall doe the like, suche, when they come of the age of 14 yeres, may demand their right, and recover the same according to the Custome of the Towne.

Cap. 71. Threats portending danger of life or limbe, or burning of houses, proved by 2 witnesses uppon othe before the Bayliffs and Coroners, the delinquent shall be attached to find fower suerties of the Peace to him that is threatened.

And if he will not finde suerties at the Court, he shall be imprisoned till he finde suerties.

Cap. 72. Drawing of a weapon, giving blow or wound in the presence of the Bayliffs, the offender shall be imprisoned forty dayes, till he have found suerty to recompence the offence. And the same shall be done in Court.

Cap. 73. Sclanderous words, whereby any man is indamaged or defamed in the presence of others or in open market.

The party wronged shall have his remedy by pledges before the Bayliffs.

In open slanders the defend^t shall not wage his law.

Dammages shall be taxed by inquest or by the Court wth regard to the person that is soe scandered.

If the offender hathe noe estate to satisfy the dammages, he shall be imprisoned according to the damages, If the offender cannot find pledges in the Court.

Cap. 74. Women common Brawlers or scolders shall be chastised by the Justice then called, or else shall make greevous ransome.

Cap. 75. There shall allwaies be 12 sworne men of the ablest sort to maintaine the lawes of the Towne, to doe justice, and ordaine that which shall be for the benefit of the Towne. And they shall have Oldenholm Medow for their horses, and in case of deathe or neglect of their place, they shall remove suche and elect others in their place. (a)

(a) This order was first made Thursday after St Joh. Bap: 2 E. I. [June 28, 1274] vid. Thursday aft. St. Luke: 8 H. vi. [Oct. 20, 1429].—(B.)

Cap: 76. Serjeants of the Mace neglecting to doe execution, to the indammaging of any pson, shall render dammages, and for the first offence be sequestred from his place for forty dayes, and for the 2^d offence shall be sequestred for a yere, besides the dammages, and for the 3^d offence shall be utterly deprived.

Dammages shall be taxed in suche case by inquest or by the Court.

Cap: 77. Serjeants of the mace that by false tales work strife, or that shall discover the secrets of the Towne or their superiours, being convict, shall be putt from their office.

Cap: 78. The Town Clerk that shall make false rolls to deceive the Towne or pty shall be imprisoned, and for the first offence be suspended from his place for half a yere. And for the second offence, or for discovering the secrets of y^e Towne or his sup'iours shall be utterly putt out.

Cap: 79. In accons of debt or detinue between free Burgesses, if the debt shall be above 16^d ob: If the defend^t will wage his law it shall be by tenne men in manner following, viz: the 10 men shall be divided into 2 pts, and betwene them shall be cast a pointed knife, and those 5 towards whome the haft of the knife shall lye shall be dismissed, and of the other five one allsoe shall be dismissed, and the remaining fower shall sweare wth the defendant that shall make his law.

If the debt be but 6^d ob. or under, the defendant shall wage his law, but by his third.

But this law shall not hold betwene Burgesses forrainers.

But in ples of debt whatsoever, betwene a ffree Burgess and a forraine Burgess, which of them soever shall be defendant and wage his law, it shall be by his third, if the law will admitt wager of law.

Cap: 80. An order for the making and assize of bread; now useless.

Cap: 81. An order for the brewing and assize of Ale; now useless allsoe. Onely its to be noted that in those dayes the Towne had the assize of Bread and Ale.

Cap: 82. Its used in the Towne for the Bayliffs wth other understanding men to searche the wines in the Towne betwene the old and new vintage, and to stave suche wines as are found naught, and to seise vessells to the Bayliffs use.

Cap: 83. Noe sale shall be of corn, wine, ale, or other liquor by any measure or weights but suche as shall be sealed by the Town according to the standard.

And the Bayliffs shall, when they will, make proof and triall of all the weights and measures in the Towne. And if any shall be found to use other weights or measures then suche as are approved, he shall uppon conviction be amerced.

Thus farre of the Auncient Customes and Orders :

All w^{ch} I shall rank into three orders, for some of them are of later originall, arising from ordinance by the greate Court or Councill of the Towne.

Another sort may be from ordinance likewise, but of Norman birthe in pt, and in part Saxon; viz: suche as concerne process and pleas of severall natures, concerning w^{ch} diverse are the Saxon lawes before the Normans ever camme into this nation, though I doubt not but by them they were muche compleated and refined.

The third sort are those that are concerning prop'ty of married women and of children, and translating of property by recognisance.

Concerning married women, its evident that by the Saxon lawes they were not reputed one wth their husbands, neyther in matter of property nor of dammage in all respects, for they found pledges apart from their husbands for their good observance wth the law of Decemners, and their owne estates are answerable for dammagges by them done.

Secondly, their dower was of originall regulated by the Saxon law, whoe gave the moiety w^{ch} by the Normans was turned to a third, and yet in bothe these cases the Towne did hold their Customes contrary to the Norman lawes.

Secondly as Touching Children, its noe less clere that the Custome of Gavelkind was purely of Saxon originall, and yet it held in being, notwthstanding the Norman lawes contraried the same.

The other, concerning the lawfull or full age of children; Its evident that the Custome of this Towne is expressly menconed in the Saxon lawes.

And Glanvill, writing of the lawes refined by the Normans, expressly mentioneth the full age of psons in case of conveyance, to be by the law 21 yeres, nevertheless he affirmeth the Custome of somme Burroughs to be the same wth this formerly mentioned, soe as it seemeth this Custome was so settled that lawes of the Conquerour prevailed not against it.

The conclusion of all w^{ch} will be, that this Town was a Town in the Saxon times, & that it had Customes of governm^t, & that such they were as indured not alteracon eyther by Danes or Normans, allthough it felt the force of bothe nations.

1291-2. 20 Edw. I. Munday after Assention. [May 19, 1292.]

Bayliffs, { Laurance Harand, { John Lew.

William Haile impleaded Peter fuller for taking his goods in Stoke in the suburbs of Ipsw^{ch}. The defendant pleaded in barr, that the goods were pawned to him by the plaintiffs wife for 19^d, and that he was to redeliver the same at the day apointed for the paym^t and was ready soe to doe.

And Judgem^t passed for the defend^t, and the plaintiff was ordered to pay the money, and that thereuppon the goods should be redelivered.

20 E. I. ffriday after Trinity. [June 6, 1292.]

Letis la Cenn impleaded Roger ffit's Ode in an Assalt and Battery donne uppon her to the dammage of 10^{li}.

The defend^t alledged that the plaintiff was a femur covert.

The plaintiff demanded if the defend^t had any more to say.

The defend^t said that shee p^remised that plea cum emenda, and that shee was not guilty.

The judgem^t was that shee could not soe plead, and that the plaintiff should recover damms.

20 E. I. ffriday after S^t Leonards. [Nov. 7, 1292.]

In a plea betwene Richarde de fforo and Philip Harnais, a Custome was pleaded that in all ples of entry or abatem^t the defend^t ought to depose the tenem^t in question into the custody of two of the neighbourhood, to keepe possession till the plea shall be determined.

William ffaber and Margery his wife and John ffit's Allexander de Stoke, as executors brought an accon of debt against Hugh the Prior of Trinity, for a debt due to the testator.

The defend^t demanded the will to be shewen. The plaintiffs said that it was inrolled and proved in Court before the Bayliffs, and therefore ought not to be shewen.

The Court ruled that the same ought to be shewen, although it were proved in Court and inrolled.

22 E. I. S^t Andrew. [Nov. 30, 1293.]

In the case aforesaid the executors produced the will.

The Prior said it was not sufficient, because it was not sealed wth the executors seales, and demanded judgem^t.

The executors said that the will was proved before the official, and under his seale, and that Administration was granted to them. And that afterward the said will was proved in this Court before the Bayliffs, and demanded judgem^t.

But afterwards the Prior submitted to pay the debt.

22 E. I. Monday after Assump. Mar. [Aug. 16, 1294.]

John Wallenger brought an accon of Trn^s against Henry Matelin for a nusance donne to his freehold. The Defen^t acknowledged the nusance, but he alledged that the same was donne above forty days before the action brought, and demanded judgm^t if he shall answer wthout the kings writt, and judgm^t was for the defend^t.

22 E. I. Buttols day. [June 17, 1294.]

A plea in the Court of Small Pleas of action for contribution for reparacons of a shipp called 'the Hinde,' in a case betwene Ranulf Allein and Mabil le Mestre.

1294-5 23 E. I.

Bayliffs, { Lawrance Harand,

Divers actions brought by the Prior of Trinity in the town court.

Walter de Clopton brought an accon for a house in Ipsw^{ch}, and declared that his father died seised, and that the messuage thereby descended, and ought to comme to his sonns Rob^t, Ade, Will^m, Walter, and Hugh; and that Will^m died wthout Issue, and Ade becam professed in religion, and thereby the messuage ought to comme to the complainant wth his bretheren Rob^t and Hugh as partible land.

John de Bergham, parson of St. Edm: Chappell in Ipsw^{ch}.

Markesius de Markesio brought into the court a writing signed and sealed wth the king's seale of the Castle of Burdeaux: whereby Roger Blome, m^r of the ship called 'the L:.' of Ipswich, was bound to the said Marks in 36^{li} 13^s 4^d, while he lived, for wines bought of him at Burdeaux, and that the said ship is ingaged for the payment. And therefore the ship is by the Bayliffs ordered to be arested and prised by sworne men.

Then came Thomas le Meystre and Will^m Hastings, and demanded the reason of the seisure, and prayed restitution, and shewed for cause that 20^{li} parcell was paide, and that the said Tho: and Will^m had given new bond for the residue, and hereuppon restitution of the ship is awarded. (a)

Bayliffs & Coroners, } the same that were in the last yere.

Parcell of the will of John de Claidon, giving to his wife his rents in Ipsw^{ch} for her life, proved and inrolled before the Bayliffs and others.

Tho: Ailverd, one of the Coroners, being dead, his will was proved by the executors, wherein 20^s yerely was given for ever out of lands in Stoke, called Stiwards, for the maintainance of the Bridge, and 10^s yerely out of other tenem^{ts}; and the will was proved and inrolled.

The Towne gave the Ordeale pitt in the suburbs of Ipsw^{ch} to ffabate.

This I note for the Antiquity of the Towne, for the triall by ordeale was wholly raised in the Saxon times, and at the Normans comming and after grew out of use, soe as this towne had the cognisance of plees determinable by Ordeale before the Norman times.

THE CHARTER.

Whereas by the Charter of Hen: y^e 2^d all brokage in marchandise in this Towne was forbidden, And by the Charter of Edw. I. free passage was granted of all marchandise to the place appointed for the sale thereof: Nevertheless, divers free Burgesses, minding their private gaines, tooke uppon them as hoasts to marchants, and make private sales of their commodities, and many times wthout the march^{ts} consent, and kepe the fourth part of suche sales to themselves for hoastage: and buyers doe buye for them selves and their Burgesses. It is therefore ordered that noe hoaste nor broker shall intermedle in such sales, nor shall any $\frac{1}{4}$ th p^t be allowed or demanded. And if any burgess shall claime part in any suche sales, he shall putt in security, then shall have his part. And if any Burgess shall go contrary hereunto, he shall loose his goods soe bought, and allsoe his freedome. And that all goods and Chattells of buyers shall be lyable for the debt due for suche marchandise. And all contracts for marchandise shall be recorded before the Bayliffs uppon acknowledgm^t, if the seller will, and the suerities for performance and the Bayliffs shall levy by distresse the debt and dammages for delay: and if paym^t cannot be made, the pty shall be disfranchised.

All forestallers shall loose the goods forestalled, and if he be a free Burgess, he shall moreover loose his freedome.

That there shall be noe broker wthin the Towne.

That noe Burgess shall take uppon himself to victuall marchant shippes, and thereuppon demand brokage, but every marchant shall victuall as he pleaseth.

Whereas noe day nor hower in certainty is determined for election of Bayliffs, whereby Bayliffs have bein at their own wills making a party for themselves, And have layed taxes and levied them upon the Commoners to their owne private benifit, wth ransoms and amercem^{ts}: It is ordered that the election of Bayliffs shall be uppon the feast of the Nativity of our Lady; unless the Commons by their common assent will retaine their former Bayliffs still.

Eache Bayliff shall have for his fee yerely five pounds, and the auncient Custome of ffishe, hering, onyons, garlick, Broomes, and the usuall fee of sixe pence for every ensealing.

That the Bayliffs shall take noe amercem^{ts} wthout the presence of the Chamberlins and two lawfull men.

That the Bayliffs shall not charge the Towne wthout the presence of the Chamberlins.

That two sufficient persons of the inferiour sort of people, shall, by common consent, be elected to be Chamberlins to receive ples, issues, and approvem^{ts} of the said Towne. And thereout to pay the farme to the King, the Bayliffs fees, and other estreats for the Towne.

That the Bayliffs shall charge the Chamberlins wth the said approvem^{ts}; And the Chamberlins thereof shall accompt in the Tollhouse.

That the Chamberlins shall counter roll to the Bayliffs all manner of ples touching frank tenem^{ts}, recognisances of ffrank tenem^{ts}, and of greate debts and probates of Testam^{ts}. And for this the Chamberlins shall have twenty shillings yerely to eache of them.

That the Chamberlins shall hold their place for one whole yere.

Because the Common sealle hathe often passed wthout common consent, Its ordered that fower men of the most sufficient sort, by common consent at the day aforesaid, yerely, shall be elected to kepe the fower keyes of the Common Hutche in w^{ch} the Common Sealle and the Treasury are kept. Soe as on the day of election of the Bayliffs they render the same to the Commons to be disposed as they shall please. And that nothing shall passe the Common Sealle wthout common assent and in open Tollhouse.

That one of the Commons shall be elected the same day by common assent, to be Clerke of the Court, and Common of the Towne, and he shall have forty shillings yerely from the Chamberlins, besides the ordinary fees.

And allsoe two underbayliffs, eache of whome shall yerely have a gowne and sixe shillings eight pence and shoes.

And that by common assent a Gaoler shall be elected, and he shall putt in suerties, and shall have 13^s 4^d yerely, and the auncient ffes of the Gaole. ffellons goods shall be under the Custody of the Chamberlins, whoe are to render them up to the next Chamberlins at their accompt, and all other things in their Custody.

Because Bayliffs have formerly made Burgesses by compact, taking the whole benefit to themselves: its ordered that noe Burgess shall be made in the Towne but at fower set times in the yere, viz., the next Court after Michallmass, and after Christmass, and after Easter, and after St John Baptist; And the same shall be elected by common assent. And the mony thereof arising shall goe to the common proffit, and by the Chamberlins to be collected and accompted for.

The Common Sealle shall be free to all, and not be denied to any free burgess demanding the same.

A plea of Abatem^t of a House in the suburbs by Concent.

Robert Scott was distrained, for that being a forrainer, he claimed the liberty of a free man, and being present in Court, a jury was awarded to inquire, and they found him a freeman by bloud, viz., the sonne of Will^m Kemp, whoe was a free man resident, and thereupon judgem^t passed for him. rot: min: plac:

John le Man brought an abatem^t against John the sonne of Richard Haltebe and John Lipp, and pleads that they disseised him of his freehold, that is to say, of 14^s rent, wth the appurtenances, to be received out of a house wth the appurtenances in the parish of St. Mary at the Tower of Ipswich, in the flesh market, put in view of the Jurors.

And John Lipp saies he claimeth nothing in the house or rent, nor did he make any disseisin in the same. And John the sonne &c., by Christopher Haltebe his Bayliff, as tenant of the premises, said that one William of Wetheringset was long since seised of the said rent, and is yet still seised untill that the said John Man disseised him : and the Jury named in the record being sworne, and have the view, and finde uppon theire othes that John Lipp did disseise the said John Man of the said annuall rent; that is to say, when the said John Man distrained for fower yerres annuity arere, John Lipp by force of armes rescewed the distresse from the said Joh. Man by force of armes, to the damage of John Man 2^s. The Jury being asked if John Haltebe were present at the disseisin or not, and the Jury say he was not. And that the said John Haltebe is tenant of the messuage and the appurtenances, and that the rent of 14^s is arere for fower yerres.

Judgem^t that John Man shall recover arers and damm's 2^s. And a precept to levy the same of John Lipp, and he is committed to the Gaole, and John Lypp camme and made an end.

A Commission of Inquiry concerning the Haven, in Latine, translated.

Edward, by the grace of God King of England and ffrance, and Lord of Ireland. To our welbeloved and faithfull John de Whelneham, John de la Rockele and Rob^t de Cleve, greeting: Our welbeloved Burgesses of our Towne of Ipsw^{ch} have prayed us that whereas they doe hold of us as of our Crowne of England the said Towne with the appurtenances at fee farme by the gift and grant of our progenitors, formerly kings of England, rendering thereout to us 60^{li} yerely: And although the whole Haven of Erewell in the arme of the sea there to the said Towne of Ipsw^{ch} dothe belong, and from all times passed hathe belonged: And the Bayliffs of the Towne aforesaid, distresses and attachments in the said Port to make, and Tholl and other small customs (of things and marchandises to the said Port and Town comming) ought to take in our name (for the better inabling them for the farme aforesaid) w^{ch} from all times past they have accustomed to take; without that any distresses or Attachments ought to be made by any other: or Tholle or any Custome of Goods or Marchandises to y^e said Port comming by any other person hathe or ought to have been accustomed to be taken:

Nevertheless the men of the town of Herewick, by collour of our l^rs patents, by w^{ch} lately (at theire request) we have granted the said Haven to belong to the said Towne, (uppon theire information that it belongeth to them) and we have granted to the said men of Herewick that they certaine customes of goods and marchandises comming to the said Haven for a certaine time for the benefitt of the said Towne may take. And w^{ch} said l^rs afterwards (for that they were prejudiciall unto us and our said Burgesses) we by our l^rs patents have caused to be revoked. The Men nevertheless of Herewick aforesaid, the customs of all goods and marchandises comming to the said Port of Erewell, wthout respect had to our revocation aforesaid, doe take and will not leave off to take, whereby our said Burgesses can not pay y^e ffee ffarme aforesaid as they ought, to the noe small dammage and loss of us and of our said Burgesses.

We will that the Charters of those our auncestors to the said Burgesses of the said Town to have the fee farme aforesaid, againe by our Charter shall be confirmed, and the said Port wth the arme of the sea there in that Charter shall be specified,

We, willing to provide for the indempnity of us and our burgesses aforesaid, and to be more fully certified as touching the praemises, have ASSIGNED you and two of you to inquire by the othe of honest and lawfull men of the County of Suffolk, by whome the truthe of the matter may be best knowne, in the presence of the Bayliffs and other honest men of the Towne of Herewick, as you shall see expedient, to be summoned by you if they will be present: If the Port aforesaid with y^e arme of the sea there doe belong to the said Towne of Ipsw^{ch} as it is said or not. And if soe, then from what time, in what manner, and how. And if the Bayliffs of the said Towne of Ipsw^{ch} distresses and Attachements in the said Port to make, and Tholle and other small Customs of goods and marchandises to the Port and Towne of Ipsw^{ch} they ought to take, to inable them for theire fee farme, and heretefore have accustomed soe to doe, without that any other persons the like distresses and Attachm^{ts} ought to make, or Tholle and other Customes of the said goods and marchandises ought to take, and heretefore have used to take or not. And if soe, then what, and what manner of Customes, and what Marchandises, and in what manner, and how: And if any Customes by others then the Bayliffs of Ipsw^{ch}, in the port aforesaid, of goods and marchandises thither comme, have been taken or not. And if soe, then what, and what manner of Customes and of what marchandises, and for how long time, and by whome or what persons, and by what title, in what manner, and how; and of other circumstances concerning the praemisses, the full truthe. And therefore we command you that at a certaine day and place w^{ch} you or any two of you shall appoint, you make diligent inquisition touching the praemisses, and the same distinctly and plainly made, that you send to us wthout delay, under your seales or the seales of two of you, and under the seales of them by whome the requisition shall be made, together wth this writt. ffor we have commanded our Sheriff of the County aforesaid, that at the time and place appointed by you or any two of you, to him to be made knowne, he shall cause to comme before you or two of you, soe many and suche honest & lawfull men of his Baylywick, by whome the truthe of the mater in y^e praemisses may be best knowne and inquired. If it were so, how came it that the Borough is called in the Original Domesday* 'The Half Hundred of Gippewid'? And the Town Gippewic and Gippewic, and always in Latin Gippovicus? By comparing this return with the Commission itself, it is plain these men went out of their way, for neither did the name of the Haven nor the name of the Town make any part of their inquiry. And it is most probable that this unnecessary and unwarrantable account was occasioned by some conceited, silly man among them, who, pretending to be more knowing, misled the rest. Had this return been in all points satisfactory, there had been less occasion to make a like inquiry in the beginning of the very next reign, the return to which was reasonable and true. See 3 Rich. VII., when Elizabeth Debenham being left sole heir of her brother, Sir Gilbert Debenham, who died s.p., mar. Sir Tho: Brewes of Fressingfield. The Sir Gilbert of Ed. 4th's reign was a staunch Yorkist, and on the re-adeption of the royal power by H. VI. in 1470, he accompanied Edward in his flight to the Duke of Burgundy, and was then knighted. On Edward's return, (Mon. 11 Mar. 1471) he joined the expedition, and in conjunction with Sir Robt. Chamberlain, landed, first at Cromer, and afterwards, more successfully, at Ravenspur, near the Humber. Loder's Hist. Framlingham, 394. Blomfield's Norf. iii, 167. Davy (Add. MSS. 19, 126.) has pedigrees and copious notes on this family, and there are a few in Jermyn (Add. MSS. 8207).

(f) "The Southwells," says Camden, (Brit. i. 273) "originate from Southwell in Nottinghamshire, from whence they removed into Norfolk." The seat of this branch was at Woodrising, Norf., of which, apparently, the Rich. Southwell named by Bacon became possessed on his marriage with Amy, dau. and coh. of Sir Edm. Wichingham, lord of that manor. This Richard appears to have been Escheator of Norf. and Suff. in 38 Hen. VI., and in Ed. IV. Marshal of the Exchequer, and was still living in 1492. Another branch settled at Barham, Suff. Page's Suff., 567. Blomfield's Norf. x, 275. Davy's Suff. Coll. Add. MSS. 19, 149. Jermyn, Add. MSS. 8215. Brasses of this family are extant at March, Cambs.; Cobham, Kent; and Barham, Suff. Haines' Mon. Brasses.

(a) On the day previous to this, Oct. 23, a proclamation had been issued at Leicester by Richard, addressed to the Sheriffs, Mayors, and Bailiffs of certain Counties, Cities, and Towns therein named, offering rewards for the capture of the Duke of Buckingham, the b^{ps} of Ely and Salisbury, Thomas, Marquis of Dorset, Sir Tho: Bourghier, and other rebels concerned in the late rising on behalf of Henry of Richmond. (Rymer, Foed. xii, 204-5.) "But Richard's good fortune," as Lingard says, (iv, 246) "served him better than his troops or his proclamations," for Henry, sailing from St Malo on the 12th Oct. with a fleet of 40 sail, encountered such heavy weather, that on reaching the coast of Devon, he found himself with but a remnant of his ships, and was unable to disembark. The efforts of his English adherents, begun on the 18th Oct., failed from similar causes, and though Richard marched his army into Devon, he did not strike a blow.

(a) John de Vere, 13th Earl of Oxford, K.G., was Lord High Admiral of England from 1485 to 1512, and died 1513. He was made a free Burgess of the town in 1491, (p. 162.) an honour the more readily bestowed, no doubt, since his mother was daughter and heir of Sir John Howard.

(b) Qy. Hedingham Castle, Essex, the seat of the de Veres, where the Earl had been residing not long previously, as appears from a letter to Sir John Paston. Original Letters (Sir John Fenn) v. 390.

(c) Appointed July 8, 1486.

(d) Son and heir of Roger Drury of Hawstead, and knighted by Hen. VII. on Blackheath Field, on St. Botolph's Day, 17 June, 1497, after the defeat of the Cornish rebels under Flammoek and Lord Audley. He was of Lincoln's Inn, Speaker of the House of Commons, and a Privy Councillor. Cotton MSS. Claud. C. (b) A part of Norwich was also called Rotten Row, (Blomfield's Norf. iii. 67) and in the present day we have the famous thoroughfare in Hyde Park, the name of which is said by Thornbury and Walford (Old and New London, iv. 398) and Hare (Walks in London, ii. 108) to be a corruption of 'Route du Roi,' but the derivation, if correct, must be purely local, for the Rev. Isaac Taylor informs me that in the village of Settrington, Yorks. there was not long since a row of four tumbling down cottages which went by this name, and I am also told that at Ulverston, Lanc. there is or was a road, which, abounding in rats, was termed 'Ratten Row.'

12 H. VII. Thursday, 13 Aprill. [1497.]

Willm: Spencer elected into the number of the 24.

(a) Thomas Alvard or Alverd, Bailiff in 1493, and again representative in Parliament in 1503, had received the freedom of the borough with special privilege, in 1488, and was the son of Tho: Alverd of Woodbridge, Suff., and, as it appears, keeper of Wolsey's wardrobe. His dau. Agnes m. William Daundy of Creetingham, and his grand-daughter Margaret became the wife of William Latton, Esq. of Kingston Bagpuze, Berks, the then representative of an ancient family of wealth and influence, whose monumental brasses still remain in the parish Church of St. Michael, Blewbury, Berks. The name is elsewhere found as 'Alvered,' (Blomfield's Norf. ii. 517) and in the letter referred to by Wodderspoon (p. 350) is spelt, as in Domesday, and in Blomfield, (iii. 58,) 'Alward.' The original letter is among the Cotton MSS. (Vitell. B. xii. f. 173), and has been printed in Sir H. Ellis's Original Letters, First Ser. i. 307-10. Copious pedigrees, inquisitions, and wills of this family are found in Davy's Suff. Coll. Add. MSS. 19, 114, ff. 291-8, and in the Jermyn Coll. Add. MSS. 8201, ff. 55-6, in the *Brit. None shall be admitted freeman that is villein to any other. And before any p'son shall be admitted, he shall sweare that he is a freeman of England.

Humfry Wingfeild (a) and Rob^t Southwell (b) elected to be of the Councill of this Towne, and to eache of them is granted 13^s 4^d fee yerely.

A fine of a freeman dead, remitted to his widow.

Treasurer elected.

Willm: Stisted elected to be Controller of the Towne.

(a) Afterwards Sir Humfrey Wingfield, and knighted, apparently, in 1528, being 12th son of Sir John Wingfield, K^t, of Letheringham, Suff., and Elizabeth FitzLewis of Dedham, Essex, and founder of the line of Wingfields of Brantham, Suff. He was in the Commission of the peace both for Suffolk and Essex, and High Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1520, (12 Hen. VIII.) Davy (Add. MSS. 19,155) describes him as Speaker of the House of Commons, and Jermyn (ib. 8217) as Prolocutor of Parliament, but his name does not appear as such either in Haydn or Beatson. In 8 Hen. VIII., (1516-17) according to Dugdale, (Origines Juridicales, 292) he was Reader at Gray's Inn, and his arms, quartering Bosvill and Gowsell, with the coat of his wife, a daughter and coheir of Simon Wiseman of Brantham, Esq., as an escutcheon of pretence, are in the south window of the hall. Contemporary evidence seems to show that he identified himself, more or less, with Wolsey's projects at Ipswich, and held a large share of his regard; he was, we read in 1527, "in great favour with the Cardinal," (Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII. [Brewer] Rolls Ser. iv. p. 1344.) and Dean Capon, writing to Wolsey in Sep. of the year following, speaks of him as present with Cromwell and others, at a service held "on the Eve of Our Lady," in the College church, and acknowledges himself much bound to Wingfield's kindness. (ib. p. 2071.) In 1530, on the resolution of the King to dissolve the college, he was retained (9 July) as one of Wolsey's Counsel concerning this matter, (ib. p. 2928) and on the 14th of the same month was appointed, together with Philip Tylney, Thomas Jermyn, and Thomas Rushe, as a commission to enquire into Wolsey's possessions in the county of Suffolk. (Fœdera, xiv. 404.) With Rushe, he was chosen to represent Ipswich in Parliament in 1523, and in 1529 sat for Yarmouth. He died 23 Oct. 1545, and was buried at Brantham. The family of Wingfield is one of considerable antiquity and high reputation in various English counties. Sir R^d Gipps, whose "Antiquitates Suffolicienses" are transcribed in Cole's MS. vol. 28, (Add. MSS. 5829, ff. 177-9.) says, "This most ancient family was seated at Wingfield in Hoxon hundred, temp. Hen. 1., afterwards at Winnington, c. 50 Hen. III., and last of all at Letheringham, in Loes hundred, c. 11 Hen. II." Pedigrees are given in Visit. Suff. 1561, Harl. 1103, f. 52b, and 155, f. 44b. Visit. Suff. 1563, Harl. 1177, ff. 47b, 111b. Visit. Suff. 1611, Harl. 1820, ff. 21b, 34. Visit. Suff. 1613, Harl. 1179, f. 128b. Cott. MS. Julius, F. 65. Davy has an extended collection of ped's and notes, and a copious list of printed ped's will be found in Marshall's Geneal. Guide. Brasses of this family remain at Easton, Letheringham, Mildenhall, Tannington and Wantisden, Suff. Three are preserved in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and there is one to John Wingfield, (1594,) in the chancel of St. Stephen's, Ipswich.

(b) Apparently Sir Robert Southwell, K^t, son and heir of Richard Southwell, Esq., of Woodrising, vid. sup. p. 131. He was made (19 Hen. VII.) Seneschal of all the honors and manors forfeited to the king by Edmund de la Pole in Norf. and Suff., or by his mother, the Duchess of Suffolk, and in the following year, by patent, Chief Butler of England. In 4 Hen. VIII. he became Supervisor of the king's lands and castles by Act of Parliament, and Receiver thereof. Though twice married, he died s. p. Davy, Add. MSS. 19,149, Jermyn, ib. 8215.

23 H. VII. ffriday, 12 May. [1508.]

Willm: Hall, John fforган, Willm: Stisted, elected and sworne Portmen at this Court.

Roger Gobbett, Tho: Stonway, Tho: Crane, Willm: Cuttler, elected and sworne at this Court into the 24^{ty}.

Two collectors elected for Corp' Chr'i.

(a) The second Parliament of Hen. VIII., begun at Westminster, Thursday, Feb. 4, 1512. Parry's Parl. Eng. 199.

(b) The earliest accounts of the family of Daundy seem to begin with Arthur Daundy or Dandy of Mondeford, (presumably Montford, Co. Salop) from whom Edmund Daundy of Ipswich was 4th in descent, being the son of Thomas Daundy and Mary his wife, dau. of John Wingfield, of Wingfield, Suff. A pedigree, with arms, "quarterly, az. and or, a mullet of the 2nd," is given in Visit. Suff. (Camden) 1612, f. 81, Coll. Arms, at which Visitation the family claimed also to quarter "az. a saltire or, between 4 stags statant, arg.," but this, says the record, "rests on further proof." The quartering is, however, allowed in Add. MSS. 1560, f. 301. A short biography of Daundy, who was representative in Parliament for Ipswich in 1511 and 1514, and repeatedly held various municipal offices, is given in The Suffolk Garland, pp. 158-9, and an account of his charitable bequests in Ipswich Gifts and Legacies, pp. 163, 164, 195. Jermyn (Add. MSS. 8207) has a short pedigree only, but a more extended one, with notes, is found in Davy, Add. MSS. 19, 126. He was buried in the church of St Lawrence, Ipswich, where he had previously founded a chantry. vid. p. 182, note. The brass inscriptions to himself and his wife, now lost, are given at full in The Suffolk Garland, as above, but there still remains one to Margery Daundy, dated 1618.

In this yere, about the beginning of November, the king granted his Charter of confirmacon of the liberties of this Towne. And ffurther granted to Edm: Goldgelt and Hen: Stannard, Bayliffs of the Town of Ipsw^{ch}, and to the Burgesses and Commonalty, that they and their successors shall have power and right of purchase and holding for ever, mannors, lands, tenem^{ts}, and heredetam^{ts}, to the vallew of 50^{li} p. annu', allthough they be holden of the king in capite or otherwise, or of any other lord, without any Inquisition first to be made, or notwithstanding that the certaine yerely vallew be not mentioned.

And afterwards, in the same yere, the king uppon the 12th day of Marche, did grant his Charter of confirmacon, wth inspexim' of the former Charter, and of the Charters of H: 7, E: 4, R: 2, E: 3, E: 2, E: 1, King John, and H: 2, (a) and confirmed the liberties in them granted and confirmed.

(a) This grant, reciting Patent, 12 Mar. 3 Hen. VIII., confirms a grant of certain liberties by king Edward, (iv.) subject to a farm of £60. Del. Hampton Court, 3 Mar. 10 Hen. VIII. Pat. 10 Hen. VIII. p. 2, m. 18, by virtue of a signed bill from the king. Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII. (Brewer). Rolls Ed. iii. p. 33. vid. sup. pp. 64-8, 80, 123, 166. The wording of this Charter formed the basis of the suit between the Corporations of Ipswich and Harwich at the Essex Assizes in 1778, when a verdict was given for the former, upon which the Corporation of Harwich moved for a new trial, but after a full hearing the rule was discharged, "the Court being of opinion that the right of the Corporation of Ipswich, as established by the verdict obtained at the Assizes, was very clear, and that the boundaries by water extended in a direct line from Ipswich to Polleshead, (beyond Landguard Fort) that being the true construction of the Charter granted to the Town of Ipswich 10 Hen. VIII." The only records the editor has met with of the Boundaries having been gone by water, are in 11 Hen. VI. (sup. p. 96), circa. 1722, 1759, 1761, and 1811. On this last occasion, the Bailiffs and other principal officers, on arriving off Harwich from Shotley Ferry, were met by a deputation from the Corporation of that town, informing them that they could not be permitted to land and pass through the town in their Corporate capacity; they therefore rowed round Harwich, and having gone ashore at Landguard Fort, walked in state to Polleshead, where they held an Admiralty Court, and re-embarking, proceeded again to Harwich, landed privately, and after entertaining several members of the Harwich Corporation at dinner, remained for the night. Next morning, having further surveyed their liberties in those waters, they returned to Ipswich. Add. MSS. (c) St Mary's Chapel, commonly called the "Chapel of Our Lady of Grace," is said to have stood at the north-west corner of the lane still called "Lady lane," without the west gate, and was famous for an image of the Blessed Virgin, known as "Our Lady of Ipswich," and held in high regard, to which many pilgrimages were wont to be made. Wolsey, on the establishment of his College at Ipswich, directed that an annual procession should be made to this shrine by the Dean of the College on Sep. 8, being the Festival of the Virgin Mary; but the ceremony, according to Wodderspoon, (p. 331) only once took place, for on the disgrace of the Cardinal, and the seizure of his property by the King, the Chapel was destroyed, and the venerated image, despoiled of its costly adornments, carried to London, and there publicly burned. This seems to have been done by the recommendation of Bishop Latimer, as appears by a letter from him to the Lord Privy Seal, in Sir Henry Ellis's Original letters, 2nd Series, iii. 207. The transmission of the image to London was entrusted to one William Lawrence, who accomplished this evidently delicate business with the assistance of Lord Wentworth, of whom he says, writing to the same official, "His good Cownsell, and help of his servants was so ready, that shee was conveyed into the shipp that very fewe were privy to it." ib. iii. 78.

Diverse persons presented, somme for casting into the river Bal-last, others dirt, others Bever, and fines assessed at 12^d: 2^s: and 6^s:

We have further another letter from Thomas Thacker, Cromwell's steward, to his master, dated London, 30th July, acknowledging receipt of the image, "which," says he, "I have bestowed in the Wardrobe of bedds till y^e Lordshippes pleasur shalbe further therein knownen. Ther is nothing about hir but ij half shoes of silver, and iiij stones of cristal sett in siluer." ib. iii. 79. That its position as an object of religious worship was considerable, may be inferred from the fact that it is specially mentioned as follows in Pr iii. of the Homily against Peril of Idolatry. "When you hear of our Lady of Walsingham, our Lady of Ipswich, our Lady of Wilsdon, and such other, what is it but an imitation of the Gentiles idolaters, &c." Homilies of the Ch. of Eng. Camb. 1850. p. 225. If it be true, as asserted, that Elizabeth, daughter of Edw. I., was here married in 1297 to John, Count of Holland, the building must have been, as Clarke says, "a religious house of note at an early period of our history." Clarke's Hist. of Ipswich, 178. (a) Thomas Punder or Pownder, Merchant of Ipswich, and Bayliff in this year, had for several years previously held the office of Coroner, and appears first as Chamberlain, in 5 Hen. VIII. He died 7 Nov. 1525, and was buried in the church of St Mary Key, beneath the magnificent and well-known brass still existing in that church, though not now in its original position, and which Wodderspoon (p. 342) considers to be the work of a Flemish artist. A Thomas Punder, and apparently a relation of the Bailiff, is recorded as buried in St Lawrence's Church, Ipswich, 12 Feb. 1542. ib. p. 361. From a letter written by the Earl of Arundel to Wolsey, and dated 4 May, 1521, it appears that a certain Sir William Punder, being then at Chichester, narrowly escaped arrest within the Earl's franchise, on suspicion of theft; subsequently, having as it seems gained the Continent, he is found among the knights who accompanied Tho: Howard, Earl of Surrey, on an incursion into Picardy, 30 Aug. 1522. *Chron. of Calais, p. 32. uppon view of a body found dead at Maidens Grove, wthin the liberty of Ipswich.

(a) On the news of the victory of Pavia, Feb. 24, 1525, Henry despatched ambassadors to the imperial court, proposing that he and Charles should together invade France, and divide it between them, and, since he was entirely averse to the calling of another Parliament in order to obtain the necessary supplies, he adopted, under Wolsey's advice, the expedient of "an Amicable Loan, a project derived from the old feudal obligation of contributing aid to the king when he led an invasion in person." The commission, issued towards the end of March, required of the clergy a fourth, and of the laity a sixth, but the new subsidy met with great opposition, especially from the clergy; "in Suffolk four thousand men took up arms, but were persuaded to return to their homes by the duke of Norfolk." Charles Brandon, duke of Suffolk, writing to Wolsey, in a letter dated Eye, 11 Ap. 1525, says that on the previous week he went through the whole county, except Ipswich, "with the commissioners, to induce the people to contribute to the grant." On Tuesday in Easter week (Ap. 18) he intends to sit at Ipswich, and trusts to find the people conformable. Letters and Papers, (Brewer) Rolls Ser. iv. p. 552; ib. Introd. lxvii-lxxxiii. Lingard, iv. 439.

* The Pope, at the beginning of this year, accedes to Wolsey's request for a bull for the establishment of his College at Ipswich, which is forwarded by the bearer of a letter to the Cardinal from Jerome de Ghinucci, Bishop of Worcester, and auditor of the Apostolic Chamber, and Sir Gregory Casale, dated Rome, 6 May, 1526, in which they state that they have "thought it advisable to insert that the publication could be either at the feast of St James in July, (25) or at the Nativity of the Virgin," (Sep. 8). Cott. MSS. Vitell. B. viii. 40. Letters and Papers, (Brewer) Rolls Ser. iv. p. 967. In Oct. 1527, Cromwell is at Ipswich on matters connected with the College, and again in Sept. 1528. ib. p. 1591-2036. The works were then going on vigorously. Mr. Dawndy had sent 121 tons of Caen stone, and promised 1000 tons more before Easter. Capon to Wolsey, 26 Sep. 1528, ib. p. 2071. In Dec. (p. 2112) he writes that "Lee and Barbour, the master masons, will shortly take my Lord the whole platte [plan] of the college, to know his pleasure thereon." A ballad of the period, contained in Har. MS. 2522, f. 158, and printed by the Ballad Society, (i. 352), may not improbably refer to Ipswich, and expresses the popular dissatisfaction at Wolsey's suppression of the smaller monasteries for the furtherance of his educational schemes. The poet is unfavourably comparing the Cardinal with "Thomas of Canterbury," and thus writes:—

"hym' men' do worsshyppe wth prayers & lyghte;
Thē peopyll do Curse bothe day & nighte;
Thys ys the Comon' voyse.
wth Abbayes good thy Colage yⁿ byldeste,
wth pore mens good thy place yⁿ gldeste;
How Canste yⁿ thys Reioyse?"

† There being great scarcity of corn, Wolsey, through the duke of Norfolk, offers "the most substantial men of Ipswich," and neighbouring towns, "200 out of 800 mayes of wheat, which the French king has licensed him to import from Picardy, at the price at which his factors will buy it, if they will send agents thither to convey it to England." They, however, decline to purchase, since they hear wheat is at a mark (13s. 4d.) a quarter in France, which would leave them but little profit. vid. a letter from Norfolk to Wolsey, dat. Stoke, Dec. 1, 1527. Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII. (Brewer) Rolls Ser. iv. p. 1629. There is subsequently a corn survey, "commissioners being sent into Suffolk, and other shires, to ascertain the amount of grain in every man's possession," the statutes against regrating being strictly enforced. ib. pp. 1644, 1782, and Introd. ccclix. In Dec. 1528, Norfolk writes again to Wolsey that the collectors of customs at Ipswich complain that the king's customs are lessened and his subjects impoverished by the restraints laid on the exportation of grain and victuals, and that he has promised them to obtain relief. ib. p. 2197. The price of wheat was at this time 11s., and malt 9s. a quarter. vid. Letter from Capon to Wolsey, ib. p. 2108.

20 H. VIII. The same day at An Assembly.

At an Assembly of Bayliffs, Portmen, 24, and some of the Comoners, all theire names being sett down, and amongst the rest, the names of Humphry Wingfeild and Lionell Tallmache Esq^{rs}. (b)

(b) Eldest son and heir of John Talmage or Talmashe of Bentley and Helmingham, Suff. Visit. Suff. 1561, Harl. 1177, f. 37b, and 1500, f. 48. He was Sheriff of Norff. and Suff. in 1512, died in 1533, act. 70, and was buried at Helmingham. The early history of this family, like that of too many more, has been carried back by most genealogists to a remote antiquity, the purely fabulous character of which has been severely criticised by Mr E. A. Freeman in an article on "Pedigrees and Pedigree Makers," in the Contemporary Review for June, 1877, vol. 30, pp. 27-9. The first "real man" in the pedigree, according to Mr Freeman, is one Hugo Talmashe, who lived in or about the time of Hen. 1., and this view is amply supported on reference to the Rolls and other Public Records. The earliest name in the Visitation pedigree, 1501, is that of "lyonell Talmage of Bentley in Suff. temp. H. 3., as appeareth," says the record, "by evidence in the hands of S^r lionell," the then representative. Two peerages, those of Dysart and Tollemache, are held under this name, transmitted however, in both cases, by its assumption on the intermarriage of an ancestor with a member of the family of Talmashe.

They gave to the Deane and Cannons of the Cardinalls Colledge of St Mary in Ipsw^{ch}, all the interest of the Towne in the lands in Whitton and Ipsw^{ch} w^{ch} the Town claimed in them by the last will and testament of Rich: ffelaw, or otherwise. (a)

The letter of the Bailiffs to Wolsey, dated 10 Jan. 1529, expressing their willingness to surrender the School lands, (printed, but in a modernized form, in Ipswich Gifts and Legacies, 1747, p. 105.) is preserved in the Record Office, (State Papers, Hen. * Since the regnal years of this king began on the 21 Ap., it is clear that if the MS. is to be strictly followed, Ascension Day in 20 H. VIII. could not fall in 1529, so that either this entry is misplaced, or should be regarded as 21 H. VIII., in which case the date would be May 7, 1529.

(a) Sir Thomas Rush, K^t, of Chapmans in Sudbourn, Suff., living at Ipswich in 1514, and Sheriff of Norf. and Suff. in 25 Hen. VIII., (Fuller's Worthies, ii.) is the first of this name mentioned in the Visitation and other pedigrees. He married 1st, Anne, dau. and heir of John Rivers of Ipswich, by whom he had 5 sons and 1 daughter; and 2ndly, Christina, widow of Tho: Baldry, Bailiff of Ipswich, who died 20 May, 1524. His 4th son, Anthony Rush, S.T.P., became Dean of Windsor, by Patent, dated 29 July, 1566, (Le Neve, Fasti Eccles. Ang. iii. 396) and was installed Dean of Chichester, 10 June, 1570; he died 1 Ap. 1577. (ib. i. 257) being then 40 years of age, as appears from a brass inscription stated to be in the possession of J. B. Nicholls, Esq., of London, (Haines' Mon. Brasses) where he is also described as "Chaplain to the Queen." The pedigree and arms of this family, "gu. on a fess or, between 3 colts courant, arg. 3 hurts," are recorded in the Visit. Suff. 1561, Harl. 1177, f. 32b., and are elsewhere given (Harl. 155, f. 57) quartering Cutler, Worlington and Myne; in Harl. 1560, f. 38, there appears an altered coat, omitting the "hurts," with a new crest granted by Camden, Clarenceux, in 1604. Sir Tho: Rush was buried in St Stephen's, Ipswich.

† On 20 July, 1530, Capon writes to Wolsey that he learns from the Duke of Norfolk that the king is resolved to dissolve the College by Michaelmas, and that the lands have already been seized to the king's use; on Oct. 4, he again writes that he has received orders from the king, through Norfolk, to dissolve the College, retaining only "the sub-dean, schoolmaster, usher, and six grammar children," until the king's further pleasure should be known. He also states that a commission, consisting of Sir Philip Tylney, Humphrey Wingfyld, Thomas Rushe, and Thomas Jermyn, had sat on 19 Sep. at Woodbridge, and had given verdict that by reason of the praemunire committed by Wolsey, as they alleged, all the College lands were forfeited to the king. And a person drowned, and what persons were wth him.

(a) Various statutes, from Hen. III. to Ed. IV. forbad the setting up of weres, kiddles, or other immovable means, in salt water, for the purpose of ensnaring fish, these being regarded as a cause of loss to the king, ("en desheriteson du roy,") and prejudicial to the ports, ("en aneautance des ports,") and it was ordered that all such should be pulled up, but only in the presence of the High Admiral, or by his special commission. The offender was fined according to the length of time the obstruction had existed, and the amount of profit he was supposed to have made by it. Black Book of the Admiralty, Rolls Ed. i. 74-7, &c. The kiddie or kidel was a kind of weir fitted with nets for intercepting fish. Successive ordinances were issued from the time of Richard I. to that of Henry V. against their use in the Thames or Medway. Liber Albus, Rolls Ed. pp. 498-9, &c.

(b) The maritime laws of the 15th cent. punished offences of this kind with a fine. "Pena pro verberacione seu affraya, finem faciet secundum discrecionem admiralli, secundum quantitatem et qualitatem delicti, (et) pro sanguinis extractione decem solidos nomine finis domino admirallo solvet." De Officio Admiralitatis, xxvij^{as} Art. Black Book of the Admiralty, Rolls Ed. i. 230-1.

(a) This seems to be the earliest mention of the town musicians, more particularly referred to in succeeding pages. The name of "waits" or "wayghtes" was indifferently applied to the players and to their instruments, although more usually to the former. Thoms (Early Eng. Romances, iii. 178) understands the word to signify a musical instrument, which Butler (Principles of Music, 1636) identifies as the hobby or hautboy, then of different sizes, the mouthpiece being a quill, and Minshew also writes, "waites, a wind instrument, vid. bobois," but most lexicographers and general usage have assigned the term rather to the performers. Skinner (Etym. Aug.) calls them "Lycines, Tibicines, Citharaedi," who attend upon "magistratus et alios in pompis," and Nares (Glossary) adopts the same interpretation. Dr. Richardson derives the name from Fr. Guetter, Germ. wachten, to watch, as indicating their original occupation, which is well illustrated in the records of the Duchy of Cornwall, where frequent mention is made of a Curia Vigiliae or Curia de gayte, i.e. Court of Waits, to which suit was owed by those who held their lands on tenure of keeping watch at the castle gate of Launceston. Notes and Queries, 3^d Ser. vi. 487. Wayte-fees were similarly paid at Norwich, (Arch. Journ. iii. 340) the castle watch being distinct from the castle guard. (Spelman, Gloss. sub voce.) But when no longer needed in this capacity, they still remained as an appanage of monarchs and municipal bodies, under whom they enjoyed exclusive privileges, receiving 3d. or 4d. a day, besides board and clothing. As watchmen they were accustomed to pipe the hour, and hence their conversion into musicians. Remembrancia, City of Lond. 275.

(b) William Sabin or Sabine was the son of John Sabin, Esq. who in 1516 received a life annuity of 12d. a day for being in arms in the king's service. Letters and Papers (Brewer) Rolls Ser. ii. p. 876. Previous to this election W^m Sabin had been for many years extensively employed as a Captain in the Royal Navy, and clearly held a position of some importance. In 1512-13, he was in command of a ship bearing his own name, "The Sabyne," of 120 tons, and carrying 60 men, (ib. i. pp. 455, 551) to which in 1513, (Mar. 25) two months' wages were ordered from Feb. 1, being 6s. a man per month, and the same for victuals (ib. i. p. 660). In April of the same year he was sent with despatches from the Admiral for the king, (ib. p. 538) receiving at 20^s rent yerely, Provided that he shall plancher, window, and doore the same, and lock it sufficiently.

All strangers comming by water to the Common Kay, shall unlade theire Marchandise uppon the Common Kay, paying the Tolls and Customes of the Towne and King according to the Table in y^e Kay house. And noe person shall unlade at any other Kay, unless the Toll and Custome shall first be payde.

Two of the 24 fined at 12^d each, for departure out of Court w^{thout} the Bayliffs licence.

30 H. VIII. Munday before George. [Ap. 22, 1538.]

Constables assigned to severall wards, to remove nusances, and to levy mony to pay Carts for their cariage of the filth away.

for this service the sum of 20*l.* (ib. ii. p. 1460) and returned just too late to take part in or to prevent an engagement, the disastrous termination of which he laments in a letter to Wolsey, written while under sail, Ap. 30, 1513. The Admiral, Sir Edward Howard, had put to sea with 32, or, as some say, 42 ships of war, and was blockading the French fleet at Brest, but hearing that 6 French galleys, coming from Marseilles, had reached Conquet, 11 miles W. of Brest, he met and attacked them, himself boarding the ship of the French commander. The two vessels, however, getting separated during the action, Howard, left with only a few attendants on board the enemy, was killed. Sabyne declares that the attack was not conducted as he would have advised it, and, says he, "now we be bodys withowte a hed." ib. i. p. 549. Rapin's Hist. Eng. i. 721. Whether he afterwards temporarily exchanged his ship is not clear, but in a declaration of charges relative to "the king's army royal now on the sea," dat. Ap. 1513, W^m Sabyne, with John Jermyn, master, appears as Captain of "The Less Bark," a vessel of 240 tons, and carrying 193 men. Lett & Pap. i. p. 552. A subsequent list, dat. Aug. 31, 1513, again mentions him as Captain of "The Sabyne," now carrying 101 men, and in the September following he was appointed to cruise with his ship during the winter between Dover and Calais, (ib. pp. 677-8) having on board, (as may be gathered from payments made in May, 1514) 40 soldiers, 55 mariners, and 5 gunners. ib. p. 813. In Jan. 1515, he was in command of the king's ships ordered to the Firth, (ib. ii. p. 17) and in Nov. 1517, being upon the French coast, became involved in a dispute with the French commanders on the subject of piracy, but eventually, on the production of the king's sign manual, obtained restitution of a royal vessel called "The Black Barke" (ib. pp. 1184-88). On Oct. 20, 1518, Sabyne was appointed one of the king's sergeants-at-arms, with a salary of 12*d.* a day, (ib. p. 1384.) In 1522, he was again in Northern seas, whence, writing to the Earl of Surrey, Lord Admiral, on coming into Skate road, 10 May, 1522, he says that he had fired into Leith and Kinghorn, and after attacking a ship at anchor, which was rescued by the country people, had captured a ship of Copenhagen, laden with rye, which his servant will repair and bring to Ipswich; adding, that if he had had two good ships to land 500 men, he would have burnt half-a-dozen villages. (ib. iii. pp. 1581-2.) A few days after, on his homeward voyage, he chased a Spaniard, and next two French vessels off Orfordness, finally putting into Orwell haven, where he had left his boat; (ib. p. 999). In the succeeding month he accompanied the Admiral to Dartmouth, and assisted him in the selection of a harbour to lay the great ships in for the winter. ib. iii. p. 997. In 1525, Feb. 14, he succeeded Tho: Baldray as weigher in the port of Ipswich, (ib. iv. p. 500) but in 1529 was again at sea, and in command of "The Les Bark" ib. p. 3183. In 1538, the Assembly, conditionally on a license from the king, elected him Portman, and he became Bailiff in 1540. In 1541, the site of Black Friars' monastery was granted to him, and he died, according to Davy (Add. MSS. 19, 148) in 1543. Sabyne was a great benefactor to the church of St Mary Key, the S. aisle of which he is said to have built. Wodderspoon, 307. Clarke (p. 270) records a stone bearing his name and arms, viz.: "sa, 3 flies, or, 2 and 1," and Davy mentions the same, "with diverse matches in the glasse."

32 H. VIII. Munday after Faith. [Oct. 11, 1540.]

Rob^t Sparrow (b) is elected one of the Serjeants of the mace.

(a) Son of Thomas Sparrow, of Somersham, Suff., and mar. Elizabeth, dau. of John Bacon, of Hessel, Suff.; elected Portman and joint Treasurer in 1537, and returned Dec. 30, 1541, as one of the representatives of the borough in the Parliament which met at Westminster, 16 Jan., 1541-42. The earliest accounts of the Ipswich branch of this family begin with Thomas Sparrow, of Somersham, A.D. 1419, whose son, John Sparrow, was slain at Hexham, 8 May, 1464; his grandson of the same name, and uncle of the John Sparrow here mentioned, fell at Bosworth Field, 22 Aug., 1485. Copious pedigrees and notes relating to the different branches of this family are given by Davy, (Add. MSS. 19,149) and by Jermyn, ib. 8215.

(b) Only son of the John Sparrow above, and mar. 1st. Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Bacon of Oulton, and 2nd. Dorothy, dau. of Thos. Armiger of Hitcham. He was elected Portman in 1573, and died July 26th 1594, aged 81. A grant of arms was made to him by Rob^t Cooke, Clarenceux, (Cooke's Grants, E.D.N. B. f. 57. Coll. Arms.) viz. "Ar. 3 roses, purp. leaved vert, seeded or, a chief of the first," to which, in June, 1594, a crest was added by Rich. Lee, Clarenceux;—"Out of a mural crown or, a unicorn's head, ar. maned purp. horned of the first." Misc. Grants, Coll. Arms, i. f. 25. & Harl. 1507. f. 32. The inscription on his tomb (Harl. 1754. f. 58) ran as follows: "Sub hoc Marmore sepultus est corpus Roberti Sparrowe nuper unius Portmannorum hujus villae Gipp'i qui obiit 26 of Julii æo salutis 1594. Etatis vero suae 84."

(a) The office of Scavenger, (A.S. Scafan, Germ. Schaben, to scrape) appears formerly to have included duties beyond those of simply cleansing the streets and public places. In London, scavengers, on appointment, besides clearing away refuse, were sworn to see that houses were roofed with unflammable materials, such as lead, tile, or stone; to regulate the height of pavements, and keep them in repair, and especially to inspect chimneys, furnaces, and reredoses, (terrailles) and report those not properly built to the Alderman of the ward, receiving 4^d for every dangerous furnace removed. Lib. Albus, pp. 313, 333. At Oxford, in 1541, a "Comon Skavenger" was appointed, every householder paying 1^d a quarter for his services, "they that have houses to paye for there dong caryage as the skavenger and they can agree." Turner's Records of Oxford, p. 162.

Three Chandlers bound in 20^{li} a peece, to sell Candle to the inhabitants at 1^d q^r the pound, without buying any other ware, and shall sell to one p'son not above 4 pounds at one time, unless to shippis.

Every householder, wth their family, shall follow the pageants of Corpⁱ Christi in due order, under penalty of 4^d, if lawfull cause be not shewen, except the 12 portmen and theire wives, and the 24^v.

Every Warden and Master of the Trade shall offer to theire Pageants upon the day of Cor^p Chrⁱ, each of them 1^d, the one halfe whereof shall goe to y^e parish preist, the other halfe shall be divided between the Clerk and the Sexton, and every defalter shall loose 4^d.

Every Burgess shall offer on the Guild Sunday one halfe penny to the preist, to be divided, the one halfe to the preist, the other to the Clerke and Sexton, and every defalter shall loose 4^d.

John Allein is sworne into the number of the 12 Portmen, and hath given bond not to exercise his trade of shoe making any more.

Granted to Archer, parcell of the Common soile lying in Mar: Elms parish.

(a) It appears from Blomfield (Hist. Norf.) that the family of Tooley or Toly (a crasis for St Olave or Olaf) were resident at an early period in that county, and several of this name held municipal offices in the city of Norwich, of which Richard Tolye or Tooley was Mayor in 1620. Henry Tooley, whose father was of Catton, in Norfolk, was Portman of Ipswich, and one of its foremost benefactors, being the founder, by will, dated Nov. 4, 1550, of the almshouses bearing his name, primarily intended for those who had been injured in the wars, or in default of such, for other "aged and decrepid persons." He lived in the parish of St. Mary Key, in a house subsequently the Ram Inn, and there died, 22 Aug. 1551, and was buried in the north aisle of the church, where there is an altar tomb, (the only one in Ipswich) bearing in lozenge-shaped panels the arms of the borough, and those of the Merchant Adventurers. Above the tomb, within a slightly recessed and arched canopy against the eastern wall of the aisle, is a brass, with the armorial achievement of the borough, and kneeling figures of Tooley, his wife Alicia, (who died 8 Feb. 1565), and their children; below, a rhymed inscription sets forth their virtues. (b) The suit "Wythyrpoole v. the Bailiff and Commonalty of Ipswich" was heard in the Star Chamber on Sat. 19 June, 10 Eliz. (1568) when John Dyer of Ipswich, merchant, aged 68, and William Bloys, aged 37, were sworn and examined in a series of eight questions. The evidence, much of which is hearsay, goes to show that a fair, called "Holy Trinity Fair" had for 30 years past been held in the street leading from Ipswich to Westerfield and Tudnam, by the Prior, Sir Humphrey Wingfield, and Sir Thomas Rushe, but it was not proved that this place was within the precinct of the Priory of Christ Church, nor that the plaintiff used any force towards the Bailiffs; at the same time it was admitted that he had personally opposed the progress of the Bailiffs, and had stopped up Pedders Lane and other public ways. Star Ch. Proceedings, (Rec. Office) Letter W, Bundle ix, No. 38. See a similar case in Abstracts of Trials in Star Ch. Harl. 2143, f. 26. Wodderspoon, p. 94. He was of Corpus Christi Coll. Camb. B.A. 1526-7, and subsequently of Gray's Inn. By his first wife Jane (Fernley), he was father of Sir Nicholas Bacon, premier baronet of England, (22 May 1611) and of Edward Bacon, of Shrubland Hall, esq., whose son Nathaniel Bacon, esq. was the writer of these "Annals"; by his second wife Anne (Cooke), he had the illustrious Sir Francis Bacon, K^t, Viscount St. Alban's, and Lord Chancellor. He died 20 Feb. 1578-9, at his residence, York House, near Charing Cross, and was bur. 9 Mar. in the south aisle of Old St. Paul's; his tomb, with recumbent effigies of himself, in armour, and his two wives, under a canopy supported by Corinthian pillars, was almost wholly destroyed by the Great Fire of 1666, only a portion of his figure surviving: the epitaph was written by George Buchanan. (a) It seems certain that this "Edw. Cook" was no other than the afterwards famous Sir Edward Coke, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1613; especially since we find that in 1605 "Sir Edward Coke" is consulted as to the Admiralty jurisdiction. He was the son of Rob^t Coke, esq., of Mileham, Norf. and was born Feb. 1, 1551-2, educated at Norwich School, and afterwards at Trinity College, Camb.; he next entered at Clifford's Inn, and subsequently at the Inner Temple, and was called to the bar Ap. 20, 1578. In 1585 he became Recorder of Coventry, and in 1586 of Norwich. He died Sep. 3, 1633, and was bur. in the church of Tittleshall, Norf, where there is a monument with an effigy. (b) Son and heir of Sir Clement Heigham (p. 241). "He succeeded to the Barrow estate on the death of his father in 1570, and through a long life appears to have taken an active and leading part in everything connected with the public business of the county, and especially with the duties of a magistrate." In 18 Eliz. (1575-6) he was High Sheriff of Suff., and represented the county in the Parliaments of 1586 and 1603; was knighted in 1579 (Lands, MS. 678), and on the threatened Spanish Invasion in 1588, commanded a band of Suffolk infantry at Tilbury Fort (Royce's Breviary). He died 2 May, 1626, and was bur. at Barrow, where there are two mural monuments to him, one of which has been defaced by a superimposed inc. to his son. Add MSS. (Davy) 19.135; (Jermyn) 8210. Montaigne, in referring to his own ancestry, seems to suggest a French origin for this family, in the words: "et les miens se sont autrefois surnommés Eyquem, surnom qui touche encore une maison connue en Angleterre." had done, but request that the heavy ordnance may be supplied from the Queen's stores. Sir Francis having suggested that the merchants, whom he supposed to have greatly benefited by their letters of reprisal, should bear the chief cost of equipment, they reply that the merchants have rather lost than gained by reprisals, that they have before time found the inhabitants unwilling to be subsidised, and ask what they are to do with those who refuse to contribute. Stat. Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. ccix, No. 88. In the second letter, dated Ap. 19, the Bailiffs say that they have sent up the bearer to attend on Sir Francis for the great ordnance to furnish the boys, the fitting out of which will amount to four whole subsidies, and that having rated the inhabitants, one Rauff Morryss, gent, most obstinately refuses to pay his rate, whom they have bound over in 100 marks (£66 13s. 4d.) to appear before the Privy Council on St. Mark's day next, (Ap. 25). ib. No. 100. 2. ffor p'sons not able to worke, the guider shall have but 8^d p: weeke, and for others nothing.

3. Every child shall have once a yere, a coate, 2 shirts, 1 paire of shoes, and such other aparell as shall seeme good to the governors, or the most of them.

4. The Guider shall be allowed wheeles, cards, (c) bedding, and fiering, viz: 5 Chalder of Coles, and 8 lodes of two band cubit (d) p: annu^t. (And the governors shall be at the charge of surgery and physick as neede is.) and one lode of brome every quart^r.

5. The Guider shall have 40^s p: ann: wages, and housing, and ground, as now he useth the same.

(a) This year there were very heavy rains, which began in May and increased throughout the months of June and July until two days after St. James's day (July 25); August brought, nevertheless, a fair harvest, but in September there were again great rains and floods, and the price of grain rapidly rose, rye being 5s. a bushel, and wheat from 6s. to 8s. a bushel, but the dearth was caused, according to Stow, "more by meanes of overmuch transporting by our owne Marchants for their priuate gaine, than through the unseasonableness of the weather passed." Annals p. 768.

* i. e. Nov. 1 to Feb. 2.

(b) The hanging out of lanthorne and candle light between Allhallows and Candlemas was enforced in London as early as 1416, and on the institution of a standing watch, the watchmen were accustomed to patrol the streets crying "Lanthorn and a whole Candle light! Hang out your lights! Hear!" Knight's London, i. 102.

(c) "Wheeles" were for spinning, and "cards" seem to have been a species of comb for carding the wool; in 1437, John Notyngham, a rich grocer, of Bury St. Edmunds, bequeathed "j spyinning whel et j par Carpsarum," or cards. Wright's Dom. Man. in Eng. 426. Spinning was the daily employment of the boys in Christs Hosp. as late as 1814, and the Guide is directed to see a certain amount completed before they go into school. Clarke's Ipswich 278.

(d) Probably a species of faggot; a load seems to have contained about a quarter of a hundred.

6. The Guider shall have the Town livery and cognisance.
7. The Govern^{rs} shall provide 6 bedds, 3 straw beds, and 3 flock bedds, 6 paier of Blankets, sixe coverlets, 12 paier of sheets, 2 Reeles, 6 paier of cards for Thow and greate wooll wheeles.
8. He shall Calender all those that shall have 8^d allowance.
9. He shall receive none but by warrant.
10. Every person sent by warr^t of any portman shall be received.
11. Every of the 24^{ty} shall bring before any portman all masterless serv^{ts}, idle p'sons, hedgebreakers, harlotts, and Drunkards &c. whome may send them to the hospitall and discharge them.
12. And that prayer shall be said every Wednesday and friday, at least morning or evening, and on the Sabbath day both morning and evening, in the chappell.
13. The governors, or two of them, shall meete on Munday every weeke, or as the Bayliffs shall call, to see to the execution of these orders.
14. The guider shall be ruled for the continuuing in or putting out any of the hospitall, as by the Bayliffs and governours, or the most of them, shall be thought meete.

(a) Sir Tho: Waldegrave (p. 124) left three sons, William, Edward and Richard; of these the last died s.p.; Edward, the second son, was the progenitor of the present Earls Waldegrave, and from William descended the Sir William Waldegrave here mentioned. Whether it was the knight of that name who represented Suffolk in the parliaments of 1559, 1563, and 1597, and who is distinctly specified in the Return of Memb. Par. (1878) as Sir William Waldegrave, Jun., or whether his son, of the same name and rank, is not clear; both are stated by Davy (Add. MSS. 19,154) to have died in 1613, and to have been buried at Bures. The family took its name from Walgrave, Northants, and was subsequently of Bures and Smalbridge, Suffolk. Add MSS. (Jermyn) 8217; Harl. 1560 f. 28b; Morant's Essex. i. 182. Arms: per pale, arg. and gu.

(b) Sir Thomas White, K^t, Alderman of London, and Lord Mayor in 1553, was born at Reading in 1492, being the son of William White, a native of Rickmansworth, Herts, and a clothier, first at that place, and subsequently in Reading. Being apprenticed to a merchant in London, he acquired in course of time considerable wealth, and in 1566 gave to the Corporation of Bristol a sum of £2000, on condition that they should purchase an estate, and out of the rents thereof on S^t Bartholomew's Day (Aug. 24), 1597, and afterwards in every 24th year, should pay to the Corporation of Ipswich (standing 22nd on the list of cities and towns named in the deed of gift) the sum of £104, to be lent without interest to four poor freemen of the town, each loan being of the sum of £25 for four years, and on repayment to be lent out again in like manner. From 1566 to 1666, eighteen other gifts were made to the Corporation of Ipswich for similar objects, and the whole series were eventually consolidated in one fund, called the "Lending Cash Charity." In 1835 a suit in Chancery was instituted by the Attorney General on the part of the Charity Commissioners against the Corporation for the recovery of money said to be due from the latter to the Charity, which was compromised in 1843 on payment by the Corporation of £150 and the costs of the suit, amounting to £500. The Charity is now included with others in an Educational Scheme, which received the Royal Assent Nov. 29, 1881, and the next payment from the Corporation of Bristol will be due in 1888. Sir Thomas White died at Oxford Feb. 11, 1566, aged 77, and is buried on the north side of the altar in the Chapel of St. John's College, of which he was the founder. Ipsw. (a) vid. sup. pp. 403, 437. The earliest accounts of the Downing family place it at Poles Belchamp, or Belchamp St. Paul's, and Pyenest, in Waltham Cross, Essex; but they were also of W. Lexham, Norf., and of St. Lawrence and St. Mary Tower in Ipswich, and of Beccles, Suff. The Christian name of "George" was common in the family, its most distinguished bearer being Sir George Downing, Bart., M.P., Envoy to Holland during the Protectorate, and in 1670, who has hitherto been represented as the son of Calibut Downing the younger, rector of Ickford, Bucks, (1632-6) and vicar of Hackney till 1643; but it seems certain, from a copy of a deed kindly furnished me by Mr. H. F. Waters, A.B., of Harv. Coll., and of Salem, Mass., that he was, in fact, the son of Emanuel Downing, of St. Mich. Cornhill, and of Salem (1638), by Lucy, d. of Adam Winthrop, of Groton, Suff., and sister of John Winthrop, first Governor of Massachusetts, and grandson of George Downing of Ipswich. Sir George Downing was a graduate of Harvard College, (1642) and in his will, (139 Hare) dat. 24 Aug. 1683, prov. 19 July, 1684, with a cod., mentions certain property then being removed to form Downing St. His grandson, Sir George, 3rd Bart., (Will, 179 Lisle. prov. in 1749) was the well-known founder of Downing College. The will of Nathl. Downing, of Lond., uncle of the 1st Bart., (48 Cope) dat. 7 May, and prov. 14 May, 1616, leaves property in the dissolved Monastery of Whitefriars, Ipswich, (p. 98) to his wife, Margaret. A Geo. Downing was also adm. at Queen's Coll., Camb., in 1569. Arms: barry, or and vert. over all a griffin segr. or. Edm. Phill: Courtnall, Jos: Hubbard, Joh: Trunchfeild, and John Horningold elected Serjeants.

(a) It appears that Mr Ward, being skilled as a draughtsman, had in 1621 published certain caricature pictures against Spain and Rome, referring particularly to the invasion of 1588 and the Gunpowder Plot of Nov. 5, 1605, in consequence of which he was committed to prison. In April (?), 1621, he petitioned the King for freedom and restoration to his functions, declaring that "this embleme was composed by him five yeeres since, in imitacon of auncient rites, gratefully preserving the memories of extraordinarie favors and delivrances in Coins, Arches, and such like monuments, sent nigh a yeere since to the printers, coupling the two grand blessings of God to this nation - without any sinister intention, especiaлие of meddling in any of your Majesties secrett affaires." (State Pap. Dom. Ser. Jas. 1. Addenda, vol. xlii., No. 76.) At the same time, apparently, he addressed the Privy Council, praying for discharge from legal and expensive proceedings and dismissal to his charge; and in this petition he also expresses a hope that he has given a satisfactory answer to the three articles wherewith he was charged, humbly submits himself and promises "to be more cautious for the future." (ib. No. 77.) In 1622 he again petitioned the King for the pardon of his errors, and that he might be restored to his former liberty or otherwise provided for, so that his wife and eight children might be maintained, praying at the same time for liberty of preaching in Ipswich, or that the hearing and determining of his cause might be reserved to the Council. (State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cxxx., No. 127.) This petition appears, from the annotation at the foot, to have been considered before the Court at Greenwich, 31 May, 1622, and to have been referred to Sir George Calvert, Sec. of State, 1618-24. Memoirs of Sam: Ward in Dean's Life of Rev. Nath: Ward, App^a., and in "Bishops and Clergy of other days," by the Bishop of Liverpool, 1868.

(b) A Bill of Complaint, signed by John Lany, the Recorder, was accordingly filed April 2, 1635, from which it appears that under the will of one John Nicholls, dated 13 Dec., 23 Eliz. (1580), the town had been in possession, since 27 Ap. 29 Eliz. (1587), of a certain copyhold messuage or tenement, built on a piece of land parcel of Bigott's Key, in the parish of St Peter, within and held of the manor of Walton in Trimley, of which Francis Hunt of Ipswich, clothworker, was the tenant, and that, in pursuance of directions contained in the will of the said Nicholls, the tenement in question had been conveyed to the use and behoof of the Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Commonalty of Ipswich, for the better sustenance of Christ's Hosp. in Ipswich, to which purpose alone they had constantly applied the profits. Sir Robert Hicham, however, who was then, and had been for some ten or eleven years, lessee or "farmer" of the manor, on the ground that the conveyance to the Bailiffs, &c., was not recognised by the Custom of the manor, had, through his bailiffs, Lionel Edgar, jun., and Peter Hartwell, seized the tenement into his own hands, and levied a distress on the goods of the tenant, and the Bailiffs, &c., therefore pray the Lord Keeper, considering the injury thus done to the poor of the Hospital, to summon Sir Robert and his servants before the Court of Chancery to answer to the premisses set forth in the Bill. The defendants accordingly appeared, and demurred in several particulars to the statement of the plaintiffs, chiefly alleging that there was no Custom within the manor by which copyhold could be granted to a Corporation and their successors, and requesting, finally, that the Bill might be dismissed with costs. These proceedings appear to have arisen out of instructions issued by the Lords of the Admiralty for an enquiry to be made as to the cause of the decay of their jurisdiction and revenue, in pursuance of which a report was made May 7, 1633, by Thomas Rives, King's Advocate, Ric: Zouche, Edw. Nicholas, Sec. to the Admiralty, and Rich. Wyan, King's Proctor, stating that they had made an abstract of encroachments made by corporate towns and private lords of manors bordering on the sea coast, which they send with their opinion, that if these encroachments are not taken away, the Admiralty jurisdiction will be utterly lost, suggesting, at the same time, that the King should direct his Attorney General to call such encroachers by Quo warranto into the Exchequer, believing that very few of these pretended grants will prove to be of any value. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cxxxviii. No. 38.

Representations had also been made to Edw: Nicholas, Sec. of the Admiralty, in July 1633, by Henry Dade, LL.B., notary public and Commissary of Suffolk, as to the necessity of putting some limit to the prescriptive rights claimed with regard to wrecks along the coast. Sir W. Withypoll was then, he says, gone to London to renew his suit for certain masts on his shore, and he begs the interference of Nicholas in obtaining some alteration of the law on this subject. ib. vol. cclxii. In my way thither I ordered many things in the Church of Wickham (where Mr. Eaton spread his Antinomian doctrine), and in the Churchyard of Woodbridge. The Magistrates of Ipswich brought me into the Towne with great Solemnity. The Towne is exceeding facious, and yet the better part are Conformable in a reasonable good measure. Mr. Samuel Ward is thought to be the chiefe author of their nonconformity. I ordered many things in their Churches and Churchyards. I suspended one Mr. Cave, a precise minister of St. Hellens, for giving the Sacram^t of the Eucharist to non Kneelants. I excommunicated divers Churchwardens in that Towne who were soe precise that they would not take their oath. But afterwards they all submitted with protestacon to reforme their opinions, and many doe beleeve that a good reformacon will followe. I heare that in these parts there are some that doe teach that none have right to the Chreatures but the godly. But those who complained either could not or would not tell their names. There is but one Hospitall in this Towne, and that very well governed." State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cclx. No. 90, and ccxciii. No. 128.

(b) Son and heir of Robert Broke, of Nacton, Co: Suff., Esq. Knighted at Whitehall, 13 February, 1620-1; died 23 and bur. 24 March, 1639, at Nacton. Will (107 Coventry) dat. 15 Mar., 1639; prov. 2 July, 1640. From this Sir Richard descends, in the 7th generation, the present Admiral Sir George Nathaniel Broke-Middleton, Bart., C.B., of Shrubland Hall, Suff. Arms: or, a cross engrailed party per pale, sa. and gu. Add. MSS. (Davy) 19,120; Harl. 1560. f. 317a. Sir Richard Brooke, it appears, had petitioned the King for leave to build on his land at Dunham Bridge a quay and dry dock, and had supported his petition by the certificates of Francis Knox, Steven Greenwich, Thomas Coppin, John Markin, William Russell, Anthony Wellward, John Cooles, (?) and Edmond Shyrne, masters of ships, who affirmed that the site proposed was convenient for the buildings named, of which there was great need. The petition was considered at the court at Whitehall, 10 April, 1634, and referred by the King to the Lords Comm^{rs} of the Admiralty, and a copy being furnished (May 10) by them to the Master and Wardens of the Trinity House, the latter reply (May 24) that after consultation with divers masters and shipwrights of Ipswich, they conceive that the erection of a quay and making a dry dock at Dunham Bridge "wilbee very convenient and beneficiall for the navigation of these parts, and generally for the good of the Commonwealth." State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cclxv. No. 40; vol. cclxiv. f. 11a; vol. ccxviii. No. 59. Hist. MSS. Comm. 8th Rep. Trin. Ho. Records, p. 245b. In 1635, April 13, the Lords of the Admiralty forward the certificate of the Trinity House to Sir Hen. Marten, Judge of the court of Admiralty, and pray him to certify whether, before leave is given, a writ of ad quod damnum should not be issued, and whether licence should be given under the Great Seal or the seal of the Admiralty. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cclxiv. f. 110a. Add. MSS. (Batley) 25,337; f. 93, where there are some original documents on this matter, signed by the Bailiffs. The town however, represented by the Bailiffs, Edmonde Keene and Thomas Seely, strenuously resisted the attempt, as an invasion of the Admiralty rights secured to them by charter, and proceeded to move the Court of Exchequer to hear them in support thereof.

(a) This was the amount assessed on the town in respect of the famous tax called "Ship Money," suggested, it is said, by Noy, the Attorney General, and advised and promoted by the Lord Keeper Coventry, as an expedient by which the King, notwithstanding his previous disavowal of such means in assenting to the Petition of Right, might raise an extraordinary supply, for the purpose of providing a naval armament without the assistance of Parliament. Having obtained for this measure the apparently unanimous sanction of the Judges, the King, through his Privy Council, issued two successive writs, the first, dated Oct. 20, 1634, addressed to the City of London and the maritime towns; and another in Oct., 1635, to the inland towns and the kingdom generally. By the latter writ the County of Suffolk was directed to provide one ship of 800 tons, with 520 men, at a charge of £8000, of which sum Ipswich should furnish £240, Bury £213, Hadleigh £120, Sudbury £68, Eye £30, Orford £12, Aldborough and Southwold £8 each, and Dunwich £4. Rushworth's Hist. Col. pt. 2, vol. i. pp. 257, 320. Rapin's Hist. Eng. pt. 1, vol. ii. pp. 292-4. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. ccxcvi. No. 73. Lingard's Hist. Eng. vii. 391-6. The inhabitants, it would seem, readily agreed to the rate of assessment proposed by the Council, but the Sheriff of Suffolk, Sir John Rouse, whose duty it was to enforce the tax, had declared, at the instigation of "some of the countie," that he would assess the town at the higher sum of £450, and the Bailiffs and townsmen therefore sent up a petition to the Council, humbly beseeching them, that as they had paid more than £1100 towards the ship during the last year, and for various other reasons also stated, they might not be taxed beyond the £240 first agreed upon. From a note on the fly-leaf, signed by Tho: Meautys, Clerk to the Council, it appears that the petition was considered at the Star Chamber, Oct. 30, 1635, and the Council then ordered that the Petitioners and the High Sheriff (if in town) should attend the meeting of the Board on the following Wednesday in the Inner Star Chamber, at 2 p.m., any J.P. for Suff., then in town, to be present also. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. ccc. No. 59. It is only fair, however, to add, that on the issue of the first writ, the Ipswich authorities had suggested a tax of £200 on East Bergholt, on the plea that it was a member of Brantham, "a maritime town" to the east, on the estuary of the Stour, but the inhabitants of that place at once resisted the impost by petition. ib. vol. ccxvi. No. 79.

(b) Dr. Thomas Goad was rector of Hadleigh from 1618 to 1638.

(c) In Aug., 1636, the Mayor and Aldermen of Hadleigh petition the Council, praying that the Justices of the Peace of the county of Suff. may be directed to make a collection for the relief of the town, on account of the plague; 40 families, they say, are afflicted, and 200 families lack work, and are wholly dependent on the town. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cccxxx. No. 90. Pigot's Hist. Hadleigh, p. 22.

(d) On July 4, 1637, Wm. Cage and Wm. Tyler, Bailiffs of Ipswich, write to the Council, that on account of the infection at Bury, the assizes are to be held at Ipswich, which is entirely free from sickness, on the 31st inst. They fear, however, that the great concourse of pedlars, petty chapmen, and careless folk coming to the fair on St. James' day (July 25) will be dangerous to the health of the town, and ask that the fair may be for that year omitted. Signed by the Bailiffs. Seal with arms, impressed in the paper, "a lion ramp. gard, impaling 3 demi hulls." State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cccxiii. No. 25. In Nov., 1637, the inhabitants of Bury petition the King for letters patent to collect a charitable benevolence, on account of the heavy visitation of the plague, through which all trading had ceased since May 5, and the inhabitants were obliged to provide relief at the rate of £300 a year; 103 families were shut up, and 3075 persons not visited; 117 were ill with sores, and supported at the common charge; 430 had been cured, 508 had died, and 263 families had been infected. ib. vol. cccxiii. p. 184. A foot note shows that this petition was considered at the Court at Whitehall, Nov. 12, 1637, and letters patent directed to be issued. Gillingwater, in his Hist. Bury (1804) p. 281, states that the Brief was dated Nov. 17, 1638 (?), and adds that they had already disbursed £2000. It appears from Dom. State Pap. vol. cccxxviii. No. 73, that three rates had been imposed on Ipswich for the relief of Hadleigh and Bury.

refuge in England, and accordingly embarked at Helvoetsluys, in charge of Van Dorpe, Admiral of Holland, accompanied by three or four other ships, and bringing with her 6 coaches, 70 horses, and 160 attendants. Preparations for her landing, first at Dover, and next at Margate, were made by Sir H. Vane and Capt. Sir John Pennington, Admiral of the Fleet; the Earl of Northumberland, Lord High Admiral, being despatched by the King to receive her, while the Royal equipages with twenty other coaches were in readiness to carry her train. The Dutch squadron, however, was delayed by bad weather, and the Queen eventually landed at Harwich as here stated, on the 19th of October, and on the 23rd or 24th the King and Queen met her at Giddy Hall, near Romford, and brought her to London. Her coming to England was unwelcome from the first, and much discontent arose on account of the ship and conduct money paid for her Majesty, as well as for a subsequent allowance of £3000 a month, besides other sums for her retinue. She remained here, however, nearly four years, but was at length forced to leave by the Parliament, and retired to Cologne, where she died, 3 July, 1642. Cal. Clarendon State Pap. Bodl. Bibl. Having offended the King in the matter of the trial of Lord Strafford, he was deprived of all his offices, and died in 1654.

(b) James Stuart, 4th Duke of Lennox, and 2nd Earl of March, K.G., Lord Great Chamberlain and Admiral of Scotland, Lord Steward of the Household, and warden of the Cinque Ports. He was a devoted adherent of the royal cause, to support which he contributed £40,000, and in 1641 was created Duke of Richmond. On the execution of the King he assisted at his burial, and died 30 March, 1655.

(c) Sir George Goring, Kt., Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen, elevated to the Peerage 14 April, 1628, as Baron Goring of Hurstpierpoint. He rendered the highest services to Charles I., and was created (8 Nov., 1646) Earl of Norwich. He died in 1662, surviving his eldest son George, one of the most distinguished Generals of the Royal Army.

(d) Sir John Banks, born in 1589, at Keswick, in Cumberland, became Attorney General 27 Sep., 1634, on the death of Noy, and was made Chief Justice of the Common Pleas in 1641. He was a devoted Royalist, died at Oxford, Dec. 28, 1644, and was bur. in the Cathedral. Foss's Judges of Eng., vi. 251.

Anne, dau. of Sir Calthorpe Parker, of Erwardon, Kt., and represented Ipswich, not only in this Parliament, but in the "Long Parliament" of 1630-53; and in the Second Parliament of the Commonwealth (1654) was one of ten persons elected to represent the County of Suff., the only boroughs having separate representation in that Parliament being Ipswich, Bury, Dunwich, and Sudbury. He was a member of Cromwell's Parl. Committee for Suff., and in his public conduct is said to have been wholly subservient to the dictation of the army, but avoided attending judicially at the trial of the King, although appointed to do so. In 1643, Dec. 5, a sum of £100 was voted to him by the town for his services. He died 9 Sep., 1679, æt. 84, and was bur. at Assington. Will (129 King) dat. 25 June, 1677; prov. 4 Oct., 1679. † The Return from Ipswich is dated 20 Mar. 1639-40. Ret. Memb. Parlt. (1878) i. 483. This seems to have been the first contested Parliamentary election in Ipswich, and the return of Mr. Gurdon, in the teeth of the order of the Great Court, 39 EL (30 Dec., 1596) may perhaps be taken to indicate the sympathy of a majority of the inhabitants with the King's party; at any rate, in Jan., 1646, "Ipswich desired the King," Cal. An English Bill in the Excheq^r concerning the Goods of Antony Collet, felo de se, answered by this Towne, and the answe^r delivered to francis Bacon, Esq^r (c) and Wm Chapplen, (d) Commissioners for that purpose.

The Quo warranto mentioned at the Court of 4 ffebr: last, appearing to be onely for deb^{ts} and credits of felo de se: This Towne, uppon advice had, doe finde that they can not justify to claime the same by their charter, and therefore its agreed that a disclaimer shall be pleaded as to that point.

m^{rs} Ward the relict, and m^r Sam^l Ward, eldest sonne of Sam^l Ward, late publike preacher of this Towne, and now deceased, shall have allowed them during their lives and the life of the longer liver of them, 25^{li} quartily, to be paied by the Treasurer wthout warr^t. (e)

(b) A Portman of Ipswich, elected to July, 1640, freeman by service, 19 Ap., 1630, and J.P. 29 Sep., 1641. He served the office of Bailiff again in 1648, and twice in the reign of Chas. II. He lived in St. Matthew's parish, and in 1655, when Ryece wrote, was occupying a house formerly belonging to Anthony Penning, Esq., which he purchased after the death of the latter in 1630, and was also occupier, in 1645, of a house in the parish of St. Nicholas, belonging to Mr. John Cutler, but then let to Mr. Hambling. That he was a zealous Puritan there can be no doubt, for at the trial of Mr. Saml. Ward, before the Court of High Commission in 1635, Mr. Smithier appeared as a witness for the defence, and Mr. Tho. Foster, then rector of St. Matthew's, was also a Puritan, and a supporter of Mr. Ward. Mr. Smithier was in 1660 a benefactor to the Ipsw. Pub. Lib. He died March 19, 1655, act. 76, and was bur. in the north aisle of St. Matthew's, where there is an inscribed slab on the floor with these arms: on a fess betw. 3 fleurs de lis, 3 trowels (?) impaling, on a bend, 3 lozenges (Kerrington). Will (105 Mico) dat. 1664; prov. 15 June, 1666. Add. MSS. (Ryece) 15,520, f. 14b; (Davy) 19,149. State Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cclxi. ff. 105, 259. Ipsw. Gifts and Leg. (1727) pp. 144, 198.

(c) Son and heir of John Bacon, gent. of Lynn, Norf., and descended from the Bacons of Hessel, Suff. He was of Gray's Inn, became Serj. at Law in May, 1640, and in 1642 was made a Judge of the King's Bench, and knighted; after the execution of the King, the Parliament offered to renew his commission, but he refused the offer, and retiring into private life, died Aug. 22, 1657, and was bur. in St. Gregory's, Norwich. Will (117 Juxon) prov. 10 Oct. 1663. Add. MSS. (Davy) 19,116; Harl. 6071, f. 108. Foss's Judge's, vi. 249, where there is a biography and numerous references.

(d) The family of Chaplin or Chaplain was of Seamere and Bury St. Edmund's. The ped. given by Candler (Add. MS. 6071, f. 209b) includes several persons of this name. Arms: erm. on a chief indented, az. 3 griffins' heads erased, or. Add. MSS. (Davy) 19,122.

(e) Mr. Ward died, as previously stated (p. 424), Mar. 8, 1639-40, but not before he had again—in spite of his promise to exercise greater caution—subjected himself to trial and punishment on account of his extreme Puritan opinions and undue freedom of speech. Mr. Henry Dade, LL.D., Commissary for the Archdeaconry of Suff., writing to Abp. Laud, Feb. 4, 1634, complains of the increasing emigration of persons whom he supposes to be either debtors or disaffected towards the government of the Church of Warr^t for receiving of Colchester accompts.

England, and attributes it chiefly to the discontent created by the preaching of Mr. Ward against the Prayer Book and set prayer, and to the fears expressed by him of changes in the religion of the nation, and, further, to Mr. Dalton, parson of Wolverstone, "who," he says, "is a great stickler for transporting these people." (Stat. Pap. Dom. Ser. vol. cclx. No. 17.) In consequence of these representations, two ships, which were to have sailed from Ipswich for New England about Mar. 10, with 80 emigrants in each, were stayed by order of the Privy Council (ib. Col. Ser. vol. viii. No. 2) and in Nov., 1634, Mr. Ward, whose adherents, as Mr. Dade admits, were "very potent in London and about Ipswich," was cited before the High Commission Court (in which he had himself already prosecuted two inhabitants of Ipswich for erroneous tenets) to answer as to a series of 43 articles alleged against him (ib. Dom. Ser. vol. cclxi. Act Book of High Com^o. Court, f. 124b). At the two following Courts (ff. 132b, 140) Mr. Ward failed to appear, and being threatened with attachment, came before the Court on Thursday, Dec. 19, 1634, and personally answered to the various charges urged (ib. vol. cclxxviii. No. 65). Some additional articles were afterwards admitted (ib. No. 71. and vol. cclxi. f. 176b), but the whole were eventually reduced to eleven, relating, in brief, to the matters following: 1. Set forms of prayer. 2. The Book of Com. Prayer. 3. Devotional postures. 4. Bowing and other reverent gestures. 5. The Descent into Hell. 6. The Real Presence. 7. The discipline and govt. of the Church. 8. Fear of alterations in religion. 9. Popular election to Eccl. and Civil Offices. 10. Preaching and conformity. 11. Sunday recreations. The case was fully considered at twelve different sittings of the Court, extending from Jan. 29, 1634-5, to Nov. 26, 1635, in the course of which numerous witnesses were examined, and counsel heard on both sides, and all the articles exhibited being finally regarded as proved against Mr. Ward, he was ordered: 1. To be removed from his Lectureship. 2. To be suspended from his ministerial functions during the King's pleasure. 3. To make a public confession of his erroneous opinions, and an acknowledgment of his equivocation in his answers; first to be openly read and subscribed by him in Court, and afterwards to be published in the Church of St. Mary Tower, Ipswich. 4. To be condemned in the expenses of the suit. 5. To stand committed until he should give bond with sufficient sureties, in the sum of £200, to perform the order of the Court (ib. vols. cclxi. ff. 150-305; ccc. No. 67; cccii. No. 89). Two copies of the form of submission enjoined to Mr. Ward are preserved; the first of these, reciting the articles of accusation, is signed by the Bishop of Ely and two Doctors of Law. (ib. vol. cccv. No. 101). The other is signed by Mr. Ward himself, and may be the form read and subscribed in Court (ib. No. 102). The costs of the suit were taxed at £50, which Mr. Ward, after being summoned for contempt of Court, on account of his neglect, at length paid (ib. vol. cclxi. ff. 305b-316, and vol. cccxxiv. Act. Book of High Com^o. Court, ff. 4b-19b). Mr. Dade, who had been assigned by the Court to promote the suit against Mr. Ward, finding himself much out of pocket by the proceedings, petitions Alp. Laud (May 14, 1636) that some part of the costs may be given to him, and the Alp. accordingly directed an enquiry to be made into the matter (ib. vol. cccxxi. No. 21). A full abstract of the trial is given in the preface to the vol. of Dom. State Pap. for 1635-6.

A committee appointed to consider and search into the defaults of non paym^t of duties to the water Bayliff.

Uppon a petition of the Butchers for removing the Satterday market into ffriday, the better to preserve the Lords Day from Profanation, its ordered that it be moved by the Burgesses in Parlm^t for an order of Parlm^t to that purpose, and the charges shall be borne by the Town.

The objections against the Altering of the Mark^t were these :

1. Satterday mark^t is held by prescription, and the country as much interested therein as the Towne. 2. If the market be onely put off for flesh, it will destroy the whole market. 3. If the country Butchers comme to kepe ffriday market, they will never the less kepe Satterday. 4. Meate will not keepe until Sabboth day or Munday, and soe it may bring on a Munday market againe. 5. The Town Butchers will, uppon Satterday night, sell meate late in their houses. 6. The poore people receive not their wages untill Satterday. 7. It will hinder them that comme for cariages from London, which doe arive on Satterday. 8. London and other places hold their Satterday markets. 9. Butchers, if they comme not to market on Satterdays, will kepe greater markets at home, and soe the publique market may be much hindred. 10. If Butchers kepe market at home, besides the trouble in sending meate againe downe, it will make meat deerer. 11. If ffriday market be sett up, Thursday market will be putt by.

ffor the better keeping the Lords day in this Towne, Its ordered that after the 20 of Marche, uppon the Lords day there shall be p^mitted noe sporting or playing, walking at the Kay, or in the feilds, unnecessary rowing in botes, bathing or washing in the river, riding of horses further then the next watering, leaping, running, or otherwise sporting wth horses.

And all m^{rs} or parents that shall suffer their apprentices, or serv^{ts}, or children, to committ any suche offence, or to be idle or playing in the streetes, shall forfait for the first offence 1^s, and for every other offence 2^s. The prooffe whereof shall be eyther view of one of the Bayliffs, or Portmen, or Justices, or of the Common Councill, or prooffe of 2 witnesses before the Bayliffs or Justices, and the Constables uppon warr^t from the Bayliffs or Justices shall levy the forfeitures by distresse and sale. This order shall be published in the severall parish churches of this Town the next Lords day.

(b) The "Self-Denying Ordinance," by which Mr. Cage's resignation became compulsory, had its origin in the jealousy entertained by Cromwell and the Independents toward the Presbyterians, and their fear lest the latter, who were disposed for peace, should make any terms with the King, which above all things they did not desire. In order to the accomplishment of their designs it became necessary that they should obtain the control of the army, at this time commanded by the Earls of Essex and Manchester and General Waller. Lord Essex and others had already proposed to impeach Cromwell as an incendiary, and the latter, therefore, in the session of Dec. 1644, represented to the House the unsatisfactory results of the war, and prompted one of his friends, Mr. Zouche Tate, member for Northampton, to bring forward (Dec. 9) the following motion: "That during the time of this War, no Member of either House shall have or exercise any Office or Command, Military or Civil, granted or conferred by both or either Houses of Parliament, or any Authority derived from both or either, &c., and that an Ordinance be brought in." This proposal, supported by Sir Henry Vane, Jun., representative of Kingston-on-Hull, was opposed by Mr. Bulstrode Whitelocke, member for Great Marlow, but on Dec. 11th the Ordinance was reported to the House, and eventually passed on Dec. 19. The Lords, however, on a third reading, Jan. 13, 1645, rejected the measure, although importuned by the whole House of Commons, with their Speaker. In the following Feb. both Houses held a Conference on the remodelling of the army, which having been agreed upon, a new Ordinance was introduced into the Commons, read a second and third time, and committed, Mar. 24; it passed the Lords on 3rd Ap., and Essex having surrendered his commission as Lord General, the chief command was forthwith entrusted to Sir Thomas Fairfax. (c) Mr. John Brunning, M.D., rector of Semer, Suff., mar. Anne, dau. of John Brand, of Edwardstone Hall, Suff. and Gray's Inn. He died at Semer, 30 Mar., 1663, and was bur. there. In the church is a singular Latin inscription to his memory, given at length in Gent. Mag., vol. xcvi. pt. 2, p. 595; and a trans. in vol. xcvi. pt. 1, p. 98. He seems also to have been a benefactor to the Ipsw. Pub. Lib. Ipsw. Gifts and Leg. p. 143; Harl. 6071, f. 237b. Add. MSS. (Davy) 19, 120, f. 21. He was probably related to Mr. Benjamin Brunning, of Cath. Hall, Camb., A.B. 1644; and of Jesus Coll., A.M. 1648, who was appointed Town Lecturer in 1656. Wodderspoon p. 375. Calamy iii. 271. Add. MSS. 15, 520, ff. 9b, 14b.

(d) Mr. John Hudson, son of John Hudson, of Boxted, Essex, was rector of Capel St. Mary, in Sampford Hundred, Suff., and eminent as a preacher. Harl. 6071, f. 227b. A later member of this family, Samuel Hudson, was minister of St. Lawrence's, Ipswich, and rector of Earl Stonham. The Camb. Univ. Register gives the names of three John Hudsons, as graduates respectively of Peterhouse, Emanuel, and Queen's, from 1608 to 1632, and of two Samuel Hudsons, as graduates of Emanuel, from 1624 to 1650.

(e) Mathias Candler, or Gillet alias Candler, son of William Gillet alias Candler, of Yoxford, Suff., and Hannah (Fiske) his wife, was born Feb. 24, 1604, and bap. Mar. 6. He was of Trinity Coll., Camb. A.B. 1623, A.M. 1628, and became vicar of Coddendam, Suff., in 1629, from which living he was ejected by Bp. Matt. Wren, of Norwich, in 1662. He mar. a dau. of Peter Devereux, rector of Rattlesden, Suff., and died in 1663, leaving several children, one of whom, Philip Candler, of Trin. Coll., Camb., A.B. 1650, A.M. 1654, was minister of St. Mary Key, Ipswich. Calamy (iii. 258) describes him as "an excellent preacher, full of useful matter, and very perspicuous," and adds, "He had one peculiar study and diversion that rendered him acceptable to gentlemen, which was Heraldry. He was a fit man to have written the antiquities of his country." As a Suffolk antiquary, his reputation is still considerable, and his MS. volumes of pedigrees of that county (Harl. 6071, and Tanner MSS. Bibl. Bodl. 180, 257, and 324), are perhaps the most trustworthy we possess. Will (144 Juxon) dat. 30 Sep., 1663; prov. 9 Dec., 1663, by Philip, his son and executor. Arms (Gillet): erm. on a bend engrailed, sa. 3 pikes (sometimes eels) heads (G-eel-et) erased, arg. double braced, gu. Harl. 6071, f. 189b.; Add. MSS. (Davy) 19, 122; Page's Suff. 592.

- p. 366. "Poldavies." In the 16th and 17th cent. Ipswich appears to have been a chief seat of the sailcloth manufacture. The particular material called by this name was first made on the Continent, and was partly introduced into this country by an inhabitant of Ipswich. Candler, (Harl. 6071. f. 225 b) speaking of Richard Collins of Ipswich, gent. and (?) rector of Braintree, Essex, 1655, "a reverend, grave, aged man," says: "this M^r Collens and his Brother were two of those gentlemen that sought to have brought the trade of Powle Davies into England, which for a time in the daies of Q. Eliz. was thought to be a great benefit to this nation, but English Hempe did not prove so for it as that of ffrance." An Ordinance of Francis I, dated 16 Nov. 1536, permitting the exportation of merchandise during the war with the Emperor Charles V, mentions "lynen of Olones al's poldavys." Cal. Stat. Pap. Hen. VIII. In 1 Jas. I. (1603-4) an Act of Parliament was passed regulating its manufacture.
